Introductory Remarks

HE present rendering of the Old Testament is not a revision of the Authorized Version, but a New Translation from the Hebrew, in modern English. The aim has been to render the sense of the original as faithfully as possible rather than to sacrifice that 5 sense in order to give a literal translation.

This new Translation appeals to all interested in the Bible. The Explanatory Notes are free from technical details which have no interest for the average reader. We had no desire (as the translators of the Authorized Version say in their Preface) 10 to weary the unlearned, who need not know so much; and trouble the learned, who know it already. The reader may rest assured, however, that all variations from the Authorized Version in the present Translation are the results of the ripest Biblical scholarship of the present generation both in Europe and in America. The translation is based throughout on the new critical edition of the 15 Hebrew text of the Old Testament, published under the auspices of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

Departures from the Received Text are indicated by special marks, whereby the reader can see at a glance whether a variation is based on parallel passages, or on the authority of the Ancient Versions, or is merely a conjectural emenda-20 tion, &c. These critical marks are, designedly, so unobtrusive as not to interfere with the comfort of the ordinary reader; they are mainly intended for the benefit of those who are interested in the details of textual criticism.

Explanation of Critical Marks.

- (1) (i. e. V=Versions) indicate a reading adopted on the authority of 25 the Ancient Versions (Septuagint, Peshita, Targums, Vulgate, &c., in reference to which the reader may consult the Preface to the Authorized Version, also the List of Abbreviations below, p. viii, under LXX, Pesh., Targ., Vulg.). The marks (a), (b), &c. indicate that the footnotes (cf. below, p. vi, l. 32) to which those letters refer are omitted in the Ancient Versions. Punctuation marks 30 enclosed in (e), g. Joshua, p. 22, l. 15) indicate that this punctuation has been adopted on the authority of the Ancient Versions.
  - (2) (i. e. c = conjecture) indicate Conjectural Emendations.
- (3)  $\cdots$  (i. e. ), the first letter of the Hebrew word niggard 'punctuation') indicate changes involving merely a different division of the consonantal 35 text, or a departure from the vowel-points which the so-called Masorites added to the original consonantal text in the eighth and ninth centuries A.D.

- (4) \*\*  $(i. e. Q = Q \center{e}r \center{e}r)$  indicate that the marginal reading (Heb.  $Q \center{e}r \center{e}r$ ) has been adopted instead of the  $K \center{e}r \center{e}r$ ) what is written.'
  - (5) · · indicate changes introduced by reason of Parallel Passages.
  - (6) · · indicate Doubtful Words or Passages.
- (7) · · indicate deviations from the Received (or Masoretic) Text, suggested by the Versions as well as by Parallel Passages.
- (8) · indicate departures from the Masoretic reading of the consonantal to text, which are supported by the Ancient Versions.
  - (9) In cases where critical marks occur without any letters or words between them ( $\sim$ ,  $\circ$ , &c.), Omissions are indicated, based on the Versions or on Conjectural Emendations, &c.
- (10) · · indicate words implied, but not expressed, in the Hebrew. These 15 marks, therefore, take the place of Halics in the Authorized Version.
  - (11) [] indicate Transposed Passages, the traditional position of the words in the Received Text being marked by [], while the transposed words are enclosed in [ ]; see e. g. p. 5, ll. 1. 31; p. 29, l. 40; p. 30, l. 2.
- (12) | (e. g. p. 22, l. 15; p. 25, l. 4; p. 29, l. 39) indicates transposition of the 20 Masoretic ";" which marks the end of a verse in the Hebrew Text.
  - (13) . . . . indicate Corrupt and Unintelligible Passages.
  - (14) * * * * indicate Lacunæ in the Hebrew Text.
  - (15) For the symbols --, see below, p. 46, l. 27.

Explanation of Colors.

Older incorporated documents or later sections in Biblical Books of a composite character are printed on backgrounds of different colors. The explanation of the colors employed in Joshua is given on p. 45, ll. 43 ff.

Italics.

Passages printed in Italics (e. g. p. 7, 1l. 16-22) represent Redactional 30 Additions; cf. p. 46, l. 15; p. 61, l. 37, &c.

footnotes.

Words or passages printed as notes at the bottom of the pages of the translation (e. g. p. 35) represent subsequent additions to the original text.

Marginal Sigures.

In the Explanatory Notes the figures in the margin on the right refer to the chapters and verses commented on; the figures in the margin on the left merely number the lines. On those pages, however, where there are no references to chapters and verses in the margin the line-numbers are placed in the outer margin. In the Translation the lines are always numbered in the 40 inner margin, while the traditional numbers of the chapters and verses are placed in the outer margin.

Beavy-faced Mumerale.

Heavy-faced numerals are used instead of Roman letters to distinguish the number of the chapter from the number of the verse; e. g. Ps. 88, 8 = Psalm 45 lxxxviii, verse 8; but Pss. 88.89 = Psalm lxxxviii and Psalm lxxxix.

References to Biblical (Dassages.

References to Biblical passages follow, throughout, the Authorized Version, not the Hebrew Text. It is well known that the division of the chapters is occasionally not the same in the Hebrew and in the English Bibles. Where the numeration of the Hebrew text differs it has sometimes been added in parenthesis 5 (c. g. p. 59, l. 51).

Untranslated Bebrem Words.

A few Hebrew words have been lest untranslated, viz. ben, the Hebrew word for son (e. g. Joshua ben-Nun=Joshua, the son of Nun); Shebl (Heb. shb'ol), the abode of departed spirits, the habitation of the dead (Greek Hades); 10 Ashcráh, the sacred post or pole beside an altar (see Ezekiel, p. 106, l. 47); Negeb, the steppe-like region in the South of Palestine (see Joshua, p. 73, l. 19); Arabah, the deep depression of the Jordan Valley extending from the Sea of Galilee to the eastern gulf of the Red Sea (see p. 60, l. 17); Selah at the end of certain stanzas in the Psalms (see Psalms, p. 165, l. 8); Salan, in 15 Hebrew = adversary, accuser (see Notes on Ps. 109, 6); Hallelujah (Ps. 104, 35 &c.) = Praise ye Jah (a shorter form of Jhvh); Sabaoth (cf. Jas. 5, 4; Rom. 9, 29 = Is. 1, 9) in the name Jhvii Sabaoth, Jhvh of the Hosts, i. e. the God of the armies of Israel (I Sam. 17, 45; cf. Pss. 44, 9; 60, 10 = 108, 11). For Jhvh, see below, List of Abbreviations, p. viii.

Transliteration of Oriental Mames.

All Biblical names are given in the form used in the Authorized Version. In the transliteration of other Hebrew words, or of modern Oriental (Arabic) names, the vowels have their Italian sounds:  $\hat{a}$  is like the a in far or father;  $\hat{i}$  is the i in marine; and  $\hat{u}=oo$  in cool;  $\hat{e}=a$  in name; short  $\hat{i}=i$  in pin; 25 &cc. (e. g. Tel-Abû-Qudês = Tel-Aboo-Koodace). As to the consonants, j and j are pronounced as in English; q has about the same sound as English e in cool (not as e in keel, or e in queen); ' is the Arabic Ain, the voiced form of the Arabic e which may be described as a stronger variety of our e; e is the guttural e in German or Scotch loch (Spanish e or e); e is a modification of 30 our e (with an inner rounding), which affects the pronunciation of the following vowels (e. g. ein, not = seen, but more like sane; e is a modification of English books of a popular character the letters e and e are used for e and e0, respectively (e. g. e1-Aksa for e1-Aqe2e3; see Psalms, p. 235, 1.38).

Spelling.

English readers who object to the 'American' spelling, honor, &c., may be referred to Henry Sweet's New English Grammar (Oxford, Clarendon Press, 1892), p. xi and § 1710, &c., or to Dr. Murray's remarks on the spelling of av in the New English Dictionary on Historical Principles (Clarendon Press).

CUNEIFORM DISPATCH OF DUSHRATTA TO AMENOPHIS IV.

Joshua

1. The Conquest

The Lord's Charge to Joshua.

FTER the death of Moses, the Servant of JHVH, I, I JHVH spoke to Joshua ben-Nun, the Minister of Moses, thus: My Servant Moses is dead; now 2 therefore arise, pass here over the Jordan, thou and all this people, to the land which I am about to give them. > I have given you every place upon 3 which the sole of your foot shall tread, as I said to Moses. Your territory shall extend from the 4 Wilderness and the Lebanon yonder to the Great River, the river Euphrates, A and westward to the Great Sea. 2 No 5 one shall hold his own against thee all the days of thy life: as I was with Moses, I will be with thee; I will not fail thee nor forsake thee.4 Be strong and firm, for thou thyself shalt 6 15 cause this people to inherit the land which I swore to their fathers to give them. Only be thou very strong and firm to observe 7 faithfully all-"> that my Servant Moses commanded thee; do not turn from it to the right hand or to the left, that thou mayst deal prudently whithersoever thou goest. This book of the Law 8 r shall not depart from thy mouth, but thou shalt meditate thereon day and night, that thou mayst observe faithfully all that is written therein; then wilt thou make thy way prosperous, and thou wilt deal prudently. Have I not commanded thee? Be strong and firm, neither fearful nor dismayed: thy God, Jhvh, is with thee 5 whithersoever thou goest.

Joshua's Charge to the Officers and to the Two Tribes and to the Half-tribe.

I, 10.11 TOSHUA commanded the officers of the people, as follows: Pass through the midst of the camp, and thus command the people: 10 Prepare yourselves food; for, three days hence,7 ye shall here pass over the Jordan to take possession of the land, of which your 12 God, JHVH, is about to give you possession. And to the Reubenites, Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh Joshua spoke, as follows: 13 Remember the charge which Moses, the Servant of JHVH, gave 15 you: your God, Jhvh, gives you a permanent abode, and o give so 14 you this land. Your wives, little ones, and cattle, shall dwell in the land which Moses gave you beyond the Jordan;8 but you yourselves, all the fighting men, shall pass over in battle array at 15 the head of your brethren, and shall help them, until JHVH give 20 rest to your fellow-tribesmen as well as to you, and they also possess the land which your God, JHVH, is going to give them; then shall ye return to the land of your possession, which Moses, the 16 Servant of Jhvh, gave you beyond the Jordan, eastward. They answered Joshua: All that thou hast commanded us, we will 25 17 do; and whithersoever thou sendest us, we will go; we will obey thee in all things as we obeyed Moses; only thy God, JHVH, be 18 with thee, as He was with Moses! Whosoever rebels against thy commandment, and does not obey in all that thou commandest him, shall be put to death; only be strong and firm!

Rahab and the Spies.

JOSHUA ben-Nun sent secretly from Shittim<sup>1</sup> two men as spies, commanding them: Go, note the land and *city of* Jericho.<sup>2</sup>
They went,<sup>3</sup> and entered the house of a harlot, whose name was Rahab,<sup>4</sup> and there they lay down to sleep. And it was told 35 to the King of Jericho: Behold, some Israelites came here last night to spy out the land. Then the King of Jericho sent to 2,3 Rahab, thus commanding her: Bring forth the men who came to thee;" they have come to spy out the whole land. But the 4 woman took the two men, and hid +them+, and said: The 5 men, indeed, came to me, but I knew not whence they were: when the gate was about to be shut at dark, the men went out; 5 I know not whither they went; pursue them quickly, and ve will catch them. But she had taken them up to the roof, and 6 hidden them under the flax-stalks which she had there spread out. 10 So the men pursued them by the road toward the Jordan, as 7 far as the fords, and as soon as the pursuers had gone out they shut the gate. +The men+ were not yet lain down, when +Rahab+ 8 came up to them on the roof, and said: I know that JHVH 9 has given you the land, and that the fear of you has fallen upon 15 us, and that all the inhabitants of the land are faint-hearted at your approach;5 for we have heard how JHVH dried up the 10 waters of the Red Sea before you, when ye came out of Egypt, and what ye did to Sihon and Og,6 the kings of the Amorites, who were beyond the Jordan. When we heard that, our hearts II 20 trembled, and there was not a man here whose spirit did not sink at your approach; your God, JHVH, He is God in heaven above and on earth beneath. Therefore, now swear to me by JHVH that, 12 because I have dealt kindly with you, ye also will deal kindly with my family, and give me a sure sign,7 and that ye will spare the 13 25 lives of my father and mother and brothers and sisters and all that belong to them, and that ye will deliver us from death. The 14 men said to her: Our lives for yours,8 if ye do not betray this matter of ours; and when JHVH gives us the land, we will deal kindly and truly with thee. She let them down by a rope through 15 30 the window; 9 < 5 (she dwelt upon the wall). She said to them: 16 Get to the Hill-country, lest the pursuers come upon you; hide there three days, until the pursuers are returned; afterward ye may go your way. The men said to her: We will not be bound by 17 this oath which thou hast made us swear, +unless+, when we come 18 35 into the land, thou tie this scarlet thread to the window through which thou hast let us down, and gather to thee into the house thy father and mother and brothers and all thy relatives. No 19 blame shall attach to us for the death of any one who goes forth from the doors of thy house into the street; but for the death

I, 15 and possess it

PLAIN OF JERICHO

(Ser 1.58, 1.40)

-Meet 2000

2 of any one who is with thee in the house, if any lay hand on 20 him, thou mayst call us to account; if, however, thou betray this matter of ours, we will not be bound by the oath which thou hast 21 made us swear. She said: Be it according to your words! Then she sent them away, and they departed; and she tied the scarlet 5 22 thread to the window. They departed, and came to the Hill-country, and stayed there three days until the pursuers were returned. The 23 pursuers had searched all the way, but did not find them. Then the two men returned, and came down from the Hill-country, and crossed over, and came to Joshua ben-Nun, and told him all that 10 24 had happened to them. They said to Joshua: Jhuh has given the whole land into our hand, and the inhabitants of the land are faint-hearted at our approach.

Crossing the Jordan.

3,1 TOSHUA rose early in the morning, and they moved from 15 Shittim, and came to the Jordan, he and all the Israelites, and spent the night there before they crossed over. After three 3 days the officers went through the camp, and commanded the people, as follows: When ye see the Ark of the Covenant of your God, Jhvh,2 and the Levitical priests bearing it, then shall 20 4 ye also bestir yourselves, and follow it: (but between you and it there shall be a space of about two thousand cubits,3 do not draw too near;) that ye may know the way by which ye are to go, for ye have 5 never crossed over this way before. Joshua said to the people: Purify 4 6 yourselves, for to-morrow JHVH will do wonders among you. And 25 to the priests Joshua said: Take up the Ark of the Covenant, and pass on at the head of the people; so they took up the Ark 7 of the Covenant, and went at the head of the people. JHVH said to Joshua: This day will I begin to exalt thee in the eyes of all the people of Israel, that they may know that as I was 30 4, with Moses so will I be with thee.5 [ JHVH spoke to Joshua as 2 follows: Take twelve men of the people, a man from each 3 tribe, and thus command them: Take from the midst of the Jordan, from the place where the feet of the priests shall stand firm, twelve stones, and carry them over with you, and lay 35 them down in the place where ye are to spend the night. Thou 3.8 shalt thus command the priests who bear the Ark of the Covenant: When ye come to the edge of the water of the Jordan, ye shall stand still in the Jordan. Joshua said to the Israelites: Come 9 5 hither, and hear the words of your God, JHVH. Joshua said: 10 Hereby shall ye know that there is a Living God<sup>6</sup> among you who will assuredly at your approach dispossess the Canaanites, Hittites, Hivites, Perizzites, Girgashites, Amorites, and Jebusites. Behold, the 11 Ark of the Covenant of the Lord of the whole earth passes on into 10 the Jordan at the head of you. Now take twelve men of the tribes 12 of Israel, a man from each tribe. When the soles of the feet of 13 the priests who bear the Ark of JHVH, the Lord of the whole earth, rest in the water of the Jordan, the water of the Jordan shall be cut off: the water that comes down from above shall stand in one 15 heap. When the people moved from their tents to cross the 14 Jordan, the priests bearing the Ark of the Covenant at the head of the people,—when the priests who bore the Ark came to the 15 Jordan, and the feet of the priests who bore the Ark were dipped in the edge of the water (now the Jordan overflowed all its 20 banks all the days of the harvest7), the waters which came down 16 from above stood still: they rose up in one heap, very far off at Adam,8 the city which is beside Zaretan;9 and the water that went down to the Sea of the Arabah, to the Salt Sea, IT failed, was cut off; so the people crossed over opposite Jericho, and the priests 17 25 who bore the Ark of the Covenant of JHVH stood still on dry ground, firm in the midst of the Jordan, while all Israel were passing over on dry ground, until the whole nation had finished passing over the Jordan.

Erection of a Monument.

WHEN the whole nation had finished passing over the 4, x Jordan [] Joshua called the twelve men whom he had 4 provided from the Israelites, a man from each tribe. Joshua said 5 to them: Pass into the midst of the Jordan before the Ark of the Covenant of your God, Jhvh, and let every man take up a stone 35 on his shoulders, according to the number of the tribes of Israel, that there may be a monument among you, so that when your childeren ask you hereafter: What is the meaning of these stones? then 7 ye may tell them: *They are a memorial of the day* when the water of the Jordan was cut off at the approach of the Ark of the 40 Covenant of Jhvh (when it passed over the Jordan the water

4 of the Jordan was cut off); they shall be a memorial to the 8 Israelites for ever. So the Israelites did as Joshua commanded, and took up twelve stones from the midst of the Jordan, according to the number of the tribes of the Israelites, as JHVH had commanded Joshua; they took them to the place where they passed 5 9 the night, and there laid them down. Twelve stones did Joshua set up in the midst of the Jordan, in the place where the feet of the priests who bore the Ark of the Covenant stood firm, 10 and those +stones+ are still there to-day. The priests who bore the Ark stood still in the midst of the Jordan until everything was to accomplished which JHVH had commanded Joshua to speak to the 11 people; and the people passed over in haste; and when the people had finished passing over, the Ark of JHVH and the 12 priests<sup>2</sup> passed over to the head of the people. The Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh passed over in battle 15 array at the head of the Israelites, as Moses had commanded them.3 13 About forty thousand men equipped for war4 passed over in the 14 presence of JHVH to battle, to the plains of Jericho. On that day JHVH exalted Joshua in the eyes of all Israel, and they feared him 15 as they feared Moses all the days of his life,5 JHVH said to Joshua: 20 16 Command the priests who bear the Ark of the Covenant, 6 that 17 they come up out of the Jordan. Then Joshua commanded the 18 priests: Come up out of the Jordan! When the priests who bore the Ark of the Covenant of JHVH came up out of the midst of the Jordan, as soon as the soles of the feet of the priests were set 25 upon dry ground, the water of the Jordan returned to its place, 19 and overflowed all its banks as before. The people went up from the Jordan on the tenth day of the first month,7 and encamped 20 in Gilgal<sup>8</sup> at the eastern extremity of the territory of Jericho. Those twelve stones which they had taken from the Jordan Joshua set up in 30 21 Gilgal. Then he spoke thus to the Israelites: When hereafter 22 your children ask their fathers: What mean these stones? then ye may tell your children: Israel passed over the Jordan on dry 23 land, because your God, JHVH, dried up the water of the Jordan at your approach until ye had passed over (as your God, Jhvh, 35 had done to the Red Sea, which He dried up at our approach 24 until we had passed over); so that all the peoples of the earth may know that the hand of JHVH is strong, and that they may fear9 your God, JHVH, for ever.

When all the kings of the Amorites beyond the Jordan, westward, 5,1 and all the kings of the Canaanites near the Sea, heard how Jhvh had dried up the water of the Jordan at the approach of the Israelites until stheya had passed over, their heart trembled, 5 and at the approach of the Israelites there was no more spirit in them.

Circumcision.2

T that time JHVH said to Joshua: Make thee stone knives,3 2 and circumcise the Israelites again, a second time; and Joshua 3 made him stone knives, and circumcised the Israelites at the Hill 10 of the Foreskins. This is the reason4 why Joshua circumcised 4 +them+: all the people who came out of Egypt, the males, all the armed men, had died in the Wilderness, on the journey as they came out of Egypt. All the people who came out were circumcised, 5 but all the people born in the Wilderness on the journey, as they 15 came out of Egypt, had been left uncircumcised. The Israelites 6 journeyed forty years in the Wilderness until an end was made of the whole nation, the fighting men who came out from Egypt, who did not listen to the voice of JHVH, to whom JHVH swore that He would not show them the land, which JHVH had sworn to their fathers to give 20 us, a land flowing with milk and honey; their children whom He 7 had raised up in their stead, those did Joshua circumcise, because they were uncircumcised, they had not been circumcised on the journey. After the whole nation had been circumcised, they remained there 8 in camp, till they were healed. JHVH said to Joshua: This day 9 25 have I rolled off from you the reproach of Egypt; 6 and the name of that place was called Gilgal +and so remains+ to this day.

Passover.

THE Israelites encamped at Gilgal, and kept the Passover, on 10 the fourteenth day of the month,7 in the evening, on the plains 30 of Jericho. They ate what the land produced, unleavened cakes 11 and wheat roasted at the fire, on the day following the Passover, on that very day. The manna ceased - when they ate what the 12 land produced; the Israelites had no manna, but in that year they ate the fruit of the land of Canaan. * * * * * *

HEN Joshua was near Jericho, he lifted up his eyes, and looked, and beheld a man standing in front of him with a drawn sword to in his hand. Joshua went to him, and said: Art 5 thou for us or for our enemies? He said: Not so, but as the captain of Jhvh's host am I now come. Then Joshua fell on his face to the ground, and worshiped, and said to him: What does my 15 lord say to his servant? The captain of Jhvh's host said to Joshua: Take off thy shoes, thou art standing on sacred ground! 10 Joshua did so * * * * * *

Fall of Jericho.

6,1 TERICHO had shut its gates, and was shut up at the approach of the Israelites: none went out, and none came in." But IHVH said to Joshua: Behold I have given Jericho and its 15 3 king and fighting men into your hand; ye shall compass the city, all the armed men, going once around it; thus shalt thou do 4 six days. Seven priests shall carry in front of the Ark seven rams' horns; 2 on the seventh day ye shall compass the city seven 5 times, while the priests shall blow the horns. When they blow a 20 long blast on the ram's horn, when ye hear the sound of the horn, all the people shall give a great shout, and the wall of the city will fall down flat,3 and the people shall advance, every man 6 straight forward. Then Joshua ben-Nun called the priests, and said to them: Take up the Ark of the Covenant, and let seven 25 7 priests carry seven rams' horns in front of the Ark of IHVH. And to the people sheat said: Pass on, and march around the city, and 8 let the armed men pass on in front of the Ark of JHVH; <let>5 the seven priests who carry the seven rams' horns in front of JHVH6 pass on, and blow the horns, the Ark of the Covenant of JHVH fol- 30 9 lowing them, and the armed men going before the priests who blow the horns, the rear-guard following the Ark, blowing the horns to as they go. Joshua commanded the people, saying: Ye must not shout, nor let your voice be heard, nor must a word come forth out of your mouth, until I say to you: Shout! then shall ye 35 11 shout. He caused the Ark of JHVH to be borne around the city, going around it once; then they came to the camp, and spent the night there. When Joshua rose early in the morning, the 13 priests took up the Ark of JHVH, and the seven priests who carried in front of the Ark of JHVH seven rams' horns advanced, 6 blowing the horns as they went, the armed men going before them, and the rear-guard following the Ark of JHVH, blowing the horns oas they wente. On the second day they marched once 14 5 around the city, then they returned to the camp; thus they did for six days. But on the seventh day, they rose up early, when 15 the dawn began to break, and marched in this way around the city seven times. It was only on that day that they marched seven times around the city. The seventh time, when the priests blew 16 10 the horns, Joshua said to the people: Shout! JHVH has given you the city, but the city and all that is therein shall be devoted 7 17 to JHVH; only the harlot, Rahab, shall be spared, she and all who are with her in the house, because she hid the messengers whom we sent; only beware of the devoted things lest ye <covet>8 18 15 and take any of them, and thereby make the camp of Israel 'devoted,' and bring calamity upon it; all silver and gold and 19 vessels of bronze9 and iron are to be consecrated to JHVH: they shall come into the treasury of JHVH. The people shouted, while 20 +the priests+ blew the horns, and when the people heard the sound 20 of the horn, they gave a great shout, and the wall fell down flat,3 and they advanced to the city, each man straight onward, and took it. They 'devoted' everything that was in the city, 21 putting to the sword both men and women, young and old, oxen, sheep, and asses. Then Joshua said to the two men who went 22 25 to spy out the land: Go to the harlot's house, and bring out from it the woman and everything belonging to her, as ye swore to her. So the young men, the spies, went, and brought out 23 Rahab, and her father and mother, and all that belonged to her; they brought out all their kindred, and placed them outside the camp 30 of Israel, 10 Then they burnt the city and all that was therein, 24 only the silver and gold and vessels of bronze and iron they put into the treasury of the house of JHVH. But Joshua spared the 25 lives of the harlot Rahab and her father's family, and all belonging to her, and she lived among the Israelites, and her descendants 35 are here- down to this day, because she hid the messengers whom Joshua sent to spy out Jericho. At that time Joshua laid an 26 oath +upon the people+, saying: Cursed by JHVH be the man who undertakes to rebuild this city of Jericho;

The laying of the foundation shall cost him his first-born,

The setting up of the gates shall cost him his youngest son!

Jhyh was with Joshua, and his fame was spread abroad throughout 27 the land.

Achan and the Defeat at Ai.

7,1 THE Israelites broke faith in the matter of the devoted things: Achan' ben-Carmi ben-Zabdi ben-Zerah, of the tribe of Judah. took some of the devoted things, and the anger of JHVH was kindled 2 against the Israelites. Joshua sent men from Jericho to Ai,2 which 5 is near Beth-aven,3 eastward of Beth-el, and said to them: Go up. and spy out the land. After the men were gone thither, and had 3 spied out Ai, they returned to Joshua, and said to him: Do not send all the people to attack Ai, but +only+ about two or three thousand men; "do not make all the people toil thither"; "the 10 4 men of Ai+ are few. So there went up thither about three thou-5 sand men of the people, but they fled before the men of Ai; the men of Ai killed about thirty-six of them, and pursued +the rest+ from the gate as far as Shebarim,5 killing +others of+ them at the Descent;6 and the hearts of the people trembled and became 15 6 like water. Then Joshua rent his garments, and fell on his face to the ground in front of the Ark of Jhvh, until the evening, he 7 and the Elders of Israel; they put dust upon their heads. Joshua said: Ah! Lord, JHVH, why didst Thou let this people cross the Jordan +only+ to give us into the hand of the Amorites to be 20 destroyed? Would we had been content, and remained beyond 8 the Jordan! I beseech Thee, O Lord — what can I say after 9 Israel has fled before its enemies; so that the Canaanites and all the inhabitants of the land will hear, and encompass us, and cut off our name from the earth; what wilt Thou do for Thy great name? 25 10 JHVH said to Joshua: Arise! Why art thou thus fallen upon thy 11 face? Israel has sinned, and they have also transgressed my covenant which I commanded them, and have taken some of the devoted things, and stolen, and dealt deceitfully, and put the devoted things 12 among their own goods; therefore the Israelites cannot withstand their 30 enemies: they flee before their enemies because they have become 'devoted.'8 I will be with you no longer, unless you destroy the 13 devoted things in the midst of you. Arise! purify9 the people, and say: Purify yourselves for to-morrow; for thus says JHVH, the God of Israel: Devoted things are in the midst of thee, O 35 Israel, thou canst not withstand thine enemies, until ye send 14 away the devoted things from the midst of you. In the morning ye shall present yourselves +before JHVH+, to tribe by tribe; the tribe which JHVH takes 12 shall present itself, clan by clan; and the clan which JHVH takes shall present itself, family by family; and the 40 15 family which INVH takes shall present itself, man by man. He who is found with a devoted thing shall be burnt, he and all 7 belonging to him, because he has transgressed the covenant of Jhvh, and committed crime in Israel.

So Joshua rose early in the morning, and presented Israel 16 5 -before JHVH-, tribe by tribe; and the tribe of Judah was taken. When he presented the clanss 12 of Judah, the clan of the Zarhites 17 was taken; and when he presented the clan of the Zarhites, «family» by «family», Zabdi was taken; and when he presented his 18 family, man by man, Achan ben-Carmi ben-Zabdi ben-Zerah, of the 10 tribe of Judah, was taken. Then said Joshua to Achan: My son, 13 19 honor 14 the God of Israel, JHVH; make confession 15 to Him, and show me what thou hast done; hide it not from me! Achan answered 20 Joshua: Verily, I have sinned against the God of Israel, JHVH, and thus and thus 16 have I done. When I saw among the spoil 21 15 a magnificent mantle from Shinar, 17 and two hundred shekels 18 of silver, and a bar of gold fifty shekels in weight, I coveted them, and took them; the mantle is hidden, in the ground within my tent, and the silver under it. Then Joshua sent messengers, 22 and they ran to the tent, and +the mantle, was hidden in his tent, 20 and the silver under it. 19 They took them out of the tent, and 23 brought them to Joshua and all the Israelites,20 and laid them down before JHVH. Then Joshua, and all Israel with him, took 24 Achan ben-Zerah, es and his sons and daughters, his oxen, asses, and sheep, and his tent, and all belonging to him, and brought 25 them 22 to the Valley of Achor. 23 Joshua said: Why hast thou 25 brought calamity upon us? JHVH will bring calamity upon thee this day. And all Israel stoned him, and they burnt them,22 and they stoned them. 22 They raised over him a great heap of 26 stones +which is+ still +there+ to-day. Then JHVH relented.24 There-30 fore the name of that place is called the Valley of Achor 23 down to this day.

Conquest of Ai.

JHVH said to Joshua: Be not afraid or dismayed! Take with 8,1 thee all the fighting men, set forth and march against Ai.

Behold, I have given into thy hand the king of Ai with his people, his city, and his land; thou shalt do with Ai and its king, 2

8 as thou didst with Jericho and its king (only the plunder and the cattle may ye take as spoil); set an ambush for the city 3 behind it. So Joshua and all the fighting men set forth to march against Ai.3 Joshua chose thirty thousand valiant men, and sent them away by night, thus commanding them: Mark! ye are to 5 lie in ambush behind the city; 4 do not go very far from it, and be 5 ready all. I and all the people with me, will approach the city, and when they come out to meet us, as before, we will flee before 6 them; and when they are come out after us until we have drawn them away from the city, they will think: "They flee before us, 10 7 as before," and we will flee before them. Then shall ye come out of the ambush, and take possession of the city; your God, 8 IHVH, will give it into your hand. When ye seize the city, ve must set it on fire, according to the word of JHVH. Mark! 9 I have commanded you. Then Joshua sent them forth, and they 15 went to the place of ambush, and stayed between Beth-el and Ai, westward of Ai, while Joshua passed that night in the valley .5 10 Joshua rose early in the morning, and mustered the people; then he and the Elders of Israel advanced to Ai at the head of the people. 11 All the fighting men with him advanced, and when they came near 20 the city, and opposite to it, they encamped to the north, so that 12 the valley was between othems and it. He took about five thousand men, and put them in ambush between Beth-el and Ai, west 13 of Air. They's stationed the people, the whole host? who were north of the city, and its rear,8 west of the city, while Joshua passed 9 that 25 14 night in the valley. To When the king of Ai saw +them+ he hastened, and the men of the city rose early, and marched out to meet Israel in battle, he and his people, to the Descent To opposite the Arabah; 12 he knew not that there was an ambush laid for him 15 behind the city. Joshua and all Israel were routed by 13 them, 30 16 and fled by the road toward the Wilderness; 14 all the people of Ai were called out to pursue them; they pursued Joshua, and 17 were drawn away from the city so that there was not a man left in Air who did not go forth after Israel. They left the city open, 18 and pursued Israel. Then JHVH said to Joshua: Stretch forth 35 the javelin in thy hand toward Ai; I will give it into thy power. When Joshua stretched forth the javelin in his hand toward the 19 city, the ambush came out quickly from its place; they ran when he stretched forth his hand, and came to the city, took it, and hastened to set fire to it. When the men of Ai turned round, 8,20 and looked, the smoke of the city went up to heaven, and they had no strength to flee one way or the other; while the Israelitish. people who fled to the Wilderness turned upon their pursuers. 5 When Joshua and all Israel saw that the ambush had taken the 21 city, and the smoke of the city going up, they turned and slaughtered the men of the city; and those +who had been in ambush+ 22 went out of the city to meet them so that the +men of Ai+ were in the midst of Israel, some being on one side of them, and some 10 on the other. They were slaughtered until there was left of them neither survivor nor fugitive. The king of Ai was captured alive 23 and taken before Joshua. When Israel had finished slaughtering all 24 the inhabitants of Ai "in the Wilderness, whither they had fled, and they had all been put to the sword, till an end was made of them. 15 all Israel returned to Ai, and put the rest of the inhabitants to the sword. All who fell that day, both men and women, were 25 twelve thousand; indeed, all the inhabitants of Ai. Joshua did not 26 withdraw his hand which he had stretched 15 forth with the javelin, until he had 'devoted' all the inhabitants of Ai. Only the cattle 27 20 and the plunder of that city the Israelites took to themselves as spoil, according to the command which JHVH had given to Joshua. Joshua burnt Ai, and made it a heap of ruins for ever, +and it 28 has remained+ a desolation down to this day. 16 The king of Ai 29 he hanged upon a tree till eventide; but at sunset<sup>17</sup> they took 25 down the dead body from the tree, at the command of Joshua, and, having cast it down at the entrance of the gate 18 of the city, they raised over it a great heap of stones +which is+ still +there+ to-day.

Altar on (Mount Ebal and Reading of the Law.

THEN Joshua built an altar to the God of Israel, Jhvh, on 30 Mount Ebal (as Moses, the Servant of Jhvh, had commanded 31 the Israelites, as it is written in the book of the Law of Moses), an altar 19 of unhewn stones, on which no iron tool had been used; they offered on it burnt-offerings to Jhvh, and sacrificed peace-offerings; 20 while he wrote there on the stones 21 a duplicate 32 of the Law of Moses 22 which he had written for the Israelites. All Israel, both strangers and tribesmen, with their elders, officers, 33 and judges stood on each side of the Ark, opposite the Levitical

8 Priests who bore the Ark of the Covenant of Jhvh, half of them in front of Mount Gerizim, and half in front of Mount Ebal, according to the command which Moses, the Servant of Jhvh, had formerly 34 given for the blessing 23 of the people. Afterwards Joshua read all the words of the Law, the blessing and the curse, exactly 5 as it was written in the Book of the Law. There was nothing of all that Moses had commanded, that Joshua did not read before all the assembly of Israel, including the women and children, and the strangers who journeyed with them. 24

General Alliance against Jerael.

WHEN all the kings on the *western* side of the Jordan heard thereof, *all the kings who were* in the Hill-country, in the Lowlands, and on all the coast of the Great Sea as far as the Lebanon, then the Hittites, Amorites, Canaanites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites, *all* gathered themselves together with one accord to fight against Joshua and Israel.

Stratagem of the Gibeonites.

BUT when the inhabitants of Gibeon<sup>1</sup> heard what Joshua had done to Jericho and to Ai, they, on their part, acted craftily, and proceeded to get themselves provisions for a journey. They took worn-out sacks for the backs of their asses, and worn-out wine-skins that had burst and been mended; they put on worn-out, patched shoes and worn-out clothes; all the bread they had provided was dry and crumbled to pieces. Then they came to Joshua, to the camp at Gilgal, and said to him and to the Men of Israel: We are come from a far country; now, therefore, make a treaty with us. The men of Israel said to the Hivites: Perhaps ye live within our country; how then can we make a treaty with you? They said to Joshua: We are thy servants. But Joshua said to them: Who are ye? and whence do ye come? They said to him: Thy servants are come from a country very far off, because of the name of thy God, Jhyh; we have heard the fame of Him and all that He did in Egypt; all that He did 9.10 to the two kings of the Amorites, who were beyond the Jordan, to Sihon, king of Heshbon, and Og, king of Bashan, who reigned in Ashtaroth. Our Elders and all our fellow-countrymen said to 11 5 us: Take in your hands provisions for a journey, go to meet them, and say to them: We are thy servants; now, therefore, make a treaty with us. Here is our bread; we took it hot from our 12 houses for our provision, on the day when we set forth to come to you; now it is dry and crumbled to pieces. Here are 13 10 wine-skins, which were new when we filled them; they have burst. Here are our clothes and shoes, they are worn out through the great length of the journey. Then the men +of Israel+ partook 14 of their provisions, without asking counsel from JHVH. Joshua 15 made peace with them, and +the Men of Israel+ made a treaty with 15 them, that their lives should be spared, and the Princes of the Congregation swore to them +an oath+. But at the end of three 16 days, after they had made the treaty with them, the Men of Israel. heard that they were their neighbors, and lived within their +country+. When the Israelites advanced they came to their cities on the third 17 20 day:7 their cities were Gibeon, Chephirah, Beeroth, and Kirjathjearim.8 The Israelites did not kill them, because the Princes of 18 the Congregation had sworn to them by the God of Israel, JHVH; but all the Congregation murmured against the Princes. Then all 19 the Princes said to all the Congregation: We have sworn to them 25 by the God of Israel, JHVH; therefore we cannot touch them now. But this will we do to them: we will spare their lives, 20 lest wrath come upon us, on account of the oath which we swore to them. < Spare ye their lives, and <let> the <m> bec <0> me 21 wood-cutters and water-carriers to all the Congregation. <So all 30 the Congregation did as the Princes said to them. Joshua called 22 +the Gibeonites+, and said to them: Why have ye deceived us by saying: We live very far from you, whereas ye live within our +country+? Now shall ye be accursed, and never cease to be 23 slaves and wood-cutters and water-carriers for the house of my God. 35 They answered Joshua, and said: Assuredly, thy servants were told 24 what thy God, JHVH, had commanded His Servant, Moses, that all the land should be given you, and all its inhabitants extirpated to make room for you, and we feared greatly for our lives at your approach; so we did this thing. # Defeat of five Southern Kings at Bibeon.

TO, I WHEN Adoni-zedec, king of Jerusalem, heard that Joshua V had taken Ai, and 'devoted' it, (as he did to Jericho and its king, so had he done to Ai and its king), and that the 10 inhabitants of Gibeon had made their peace with Israel, and +had 2 been allowed+ to remain among them, they feared exceedingly, because Gibeon was a great city, like one of the royal cities,3 and 3 because it was greater than Ai, and all its men were warlike; so Adoni-zedec, king of Jerusalem, sent a message to Hoham, king of 15 Hebron,4 Piram, king of Jarmuth,5 Japhia, king of Lāchish,6 and 4 Debir, king of Eglon,7 saying: Come to my assistance, and let us attack Gibeon; it has made peace with Joshua and the Israelites. 5 The five kings of the Amorites, the kings of Jerusalem, Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, and Eglon united, marched with all their hosts, 20 6 encamped against Gibeon, and besieged it. But the Gibeonites sent a message to Joshua in camp at Gilgal, saying: Let not thy hands be slack for thy servants, march hither speedily to our rescue; all the kings of the Amorites who live in the Hill-country 7 are united against us. Then Joshua marched from Gilgal with 25 8 all the armed and all the valiant men. JHVH said to Joshua: Be not afraid of them; I have given them into thy hand: not a 9 man of them shall hold his own against thee. Joshua made a 10 march by night from Gilgal, and came upon them; JHVH discomfited them in the presence of Israel; so +Israel+ routed them with great 30 slaughter in Gibeon, and pursued them along the road to the Ascent of Beth-horon; they went on slaughtering them as far as 11 Azekah<sup>8</sup> and Makkedah.<sup>9</sup> As they were flying 10 before the Israelites, when they were in the Descent of Beth-horon, JHVH cast upon them great +hail+stones from the sky, +until they came+ to Azekah, 35 so that they died; those who were killed by hailstones " were more than those whom the Israelites slaughtered with the sword.

Then spoke Joshua to Juvii, on the day when Juvii delivered 12 the Amorites to the Israelites, and said in the presence of Israel:

Sun, stand thou still over Gibeon!

And thou, Moon, in the Valley of Ajalon!<sup>12</sup>

And the Sun stood still,<sup>13</sup> and the Moon stayed,

Until the nation had avenged itself on its enemies.

Is it not written in the Book of Jasher? 4 So the sun stood still in the midst of the sky, and delayed to go down almost a whole day. There was no day like it before or after, when JHVH 14 10 hearkened to the voice of a man; so that JHVH +Himself+ fought for Israel. Then Joshua returned with all Israel to the camp at 15 Gilgal. But those five kings fled, and hid themselves in a cave 16 at Makkedah. When it was told to Joshua that the five kings 17 had been found hidden in a cave at Makkedah, he said: Roll 18 15 great stones to the mouth of the cave, and station men thereby to guard them; ye must not stay, but pursue your enemies, and 19 cut off the hindmost of them; suffer them not to enter into their cities; your God, JHVH, has given them into your hand. When Joshua and the Israelites had finished killing them with a 20 20 very great slaughter until they had made an end of them," all 21 the people returned to Joshua, to the camp at Makkedah, in peace: onones +so much as+ moved his tongue against the Israelites. Then 22 Joshua said: Open the mouth of the cave, and bring me those five kings therefrom. AThey brought to him out of the cave 23 25 those five kings: the kings of Jerusalem, Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, and Eglon; and when they brought those kings to Joshua, 24 he called all the Men of Israel, and said to the chiefs of the armed men who went with him: Draw near, and put your feet upon the necks of these kings. So they drew near, and put their feet upon 30 +the kings'+ necks.27 And Joshua said to them: Be not afraid or 25 dismayed, be strong and firm; thus will IHVH do to all your enemies against whom ye fight. Then Then Joshua fell upon them, 26 killed them, and hung them upon five trees; 18 they were hanging upon the trees until the evening. At sunset they took them down 27 35 from the trees at the command of Joshua, and cast them into the cave where they had been hidden, and at the mouth of the cave they placed great stones +which there remain+ down to this very day.

On that day Joshua took Makkedah, and conquered it, and put its king to the sword; he left none surviving, and he did with the king of Makkedah as he had done with the king of Jericho. 29 Then Joshua and all Israel with him passed on from Makkedah 30 to Libnah, 19 and besieged it. JHVH gave it also, with its king, into 5 the hand of Israel-; they conquered it, and put to the sword all the persons that were in it; they left none surviving, and they 31 did with its king as they had done with the king of Jericho. Then Joshua and all Israel with him passed on from Libnah to Lachish, 32 and encamped against it, and besieged it; JHVH gave Lachish into 10 the hand of Israel, and they took it on the second day, and conquered it, and put to the sword all the persons that were in 33 it, just as they had done with Libnah. When Horam, king of Gezer,20 came to help Lachish, Joshua slaughtered him and 34 all his people, until he left none surviving. Then Joshua passed 15 on, and all Israel with him, from Lachish to Eglon, and they 35 encamped against it, and besieged it, and took it that same day, and conquered it, +putting all the inhabitants+ to the sword, f just as he 36 had done with Lachish. Then Joshua advanced, and all Israel with 37 him, from Eglon to Hebron, which they besieged and took, and 20 conquered, putting, all the persons in it to the sword; he left none surviving, just as he had done with Eglon. 38 'devoted' it and all the persons therein. Then Joshua, and all 39 Israel with him, turned against Debir,22 which they besieged and took, with its king and all its cities; they put them to the sword, 25 'devoting' all the persons therein; he left none surviving; as he had done with Hebron, so did he with Debir and its king, just as he had done with Libnah and its king.

Joshua massacred the inhabitants of the whole land: the Hill-country, the Negeb,<sup>23</sup> the Lowlands, and the Slopes, with all their 30 kings, and left none surviving; he 'devoted' every living creature, 41 as the God of Israel, Јнvн, had commanded. Joshua slaughtered them from Kadesh-barnea <sup>24</sup> as far as Gaza, <sup>25</sup> and all the land of 42 Goshen <sup>26</sup> as far as Gibeon; Joshua conquered all those kings and

Defeat of Jabin, Ring of Hazor, and his Allies.'

5 WHEN Jabin, king of Hazor, heard of it, he sent to Jobab, II, I king of Madon, and to the kings of Shimron and Achshaph, and to the Northern kings in the Hill-country, in the Arabah 2 south of Chinneroth, in the Lowlands, and in the Heights of Dor4 near the Sea, the Canaanites on the east and west, the Amorites, 3 10 Hittites, Perizzites, the Jebusites in the Hill-country, and the Hivites 5 at the foot of the Hermon in the land of Mizpeeh.6 They marched 4 out with all their hosts, a great army as numerous as the sand upon the seashore, with a great force of horses and chariots. All 5 these kings met, and marched on, and encamped together at the 15 Waters of Merom 7 to fight against Israel. But JHVH said to 6 Joshua: Be not afraid of them; to-morrow, at about this time, I will deliver them all up: +they shall all lie+ slain in sight of Israel; thou shalt hamstring their horses, and burn their chariots. When Joshua and all the armed men with him came upon them 7 20 suddenly at the Waters of Merom, and fell upon them, JHVH gave 8 them into the hand of Israel, and they routed them, and pursued them to Great Zidon<sup>8</sup> and Misrephoth-maim,<sup>9</sup> and to the valley of Mizpeh eastward; they slaughtered them until they left none of them surviving. Joshua did with them as JHVH had said to 9 25 him: he hamstrung their horses, and burned their chariots.

Then Joshua turned back, and took Hazor, and put its king 10 to the sword (Hazor was formerly the head of all those kingdoms). They massacred all the persons that were in it, 'devoting' them: 11 no living creature was left, and Hazor was burned. Joshua took 12 all these kings and their cities, and conquered the cities, putting the inhabitants to the sword, and 'devoting' them, as Moses, the Servant of Jhvh, had commanded. Yet Israel burnt none of 13 the cities standing on mounds, 10 except Hazor; that did Joshua burn. All the plunder of these cities, and the cattle, the Israelites took 14 as spoil for themselves; but they put all the men to the sword, until they had extirpated them: they left no living creature. As 15

II JHVH had commanded his Servant Moses, so Moses commanded Joshua, and so did Joshua; he neglected nothing of all that JHVH had commanded Moses.

Summarp of Joshua's Conquests.

16 TOSHUA took all this land, the Hill-country, all the Negeb, 5 all the land of Goshen, the Lowlands, and the Arabah; and the Hill-country and Lowlands of Israel; from Mount Halak" that rises toward Seir, as far as Baal-gad12 in the valley of Lebanon at the foot of Mount Hermon; and Joshua took all their kings, 18 and fell upon them, and killed them. Joshua made war for a long to 19 time with all those kings. No city made peace with the Israelites; 20 they conquered the whole land by force of arms; for 13 the stubborn resistance +of the Amorites+ was inspired by JHVH +Himself+, in order that they might meet Israel in battle, and be 'devoted' without mercy, extirpated, as JHVH had commanded Moses.

Joshua conquers the Giants.

T that time Joshua proceeded to extirpate the giants 14 from the Hill-country, from Hebron, Debir, and Anab, 15 from all the Hill-country both of Judah and Israel. Joshua 'devoted' them together 22 with their cities. No giants were left in the land of the Israelites; 20 there were remnants of them only in Gaza, 16 Gath, 17 and Ashdod. 18

Deuteronomic Conclusion of History of Conquest.

TOSHUA took the whole land, just as JHVH had said to Moses, and gave it as an inheritance to Israel, according to their divisions by their tribes. Then the land had rest from war.

2. Division of the Land

The Land not pet Conquered.

HEN Joshua was old and well-advanced in years, Jhvh said to him: Thou art old and well-advanced in years, and there is very much land left to be taken in possession. This is the land that was left: all the districts of the Philistines, and all of the Geshurites, from Sihor, which is east of Egypt, as far as the northern border of Ekron (it is reckoned to the Canaanites), the five capitals of the Philistines: Gaza, Ashdod; Eshkalon, Gath, and Ekron; also the district of the Avites | in the south | all the south | all the land of the Canaanites | as far as Mearah of the Sidonians. Aphek, to the border of the Giblites; also all the eastern Lebanon, from Baal-gad at the foot of Mount Hermon to the neighborhood of Hamath; in short all the inhabitants of the Hill-country from Lebanon to Misrephoth-maim, all the Sidonians. I will dispossess them in favor of the Israelites; only assign the land by lot as an inheritance for Israel, as I commanded thee.

13,4.5 "the Amorites. And the land

Inheritance of the Two Tribes and of the Half-Tribe.

OW divide this land as an inheritance to the nine tribes * * 13,7 * * *,6 and the half-tribe of Manasseh, with which tribe 8 the Reubenites and the Gadites received their inheritance, which 5 Moses had given them beyond the Jordan eastward (just as Moses, the Servant of JHVH, had given to them) from Aroer, on the edge of of the valley of the Arnon, and +from+ the city in the middle of the valley, all the plain of Medeba as far as Dibon, and all 10 the cities of Sihon, king of the Amorites, who reigned in Heshbon, to the border of the Ammonites; also Gilead, and the territory of 11 the Geshurites and Maachathites, and all Mount Hermon, and all Bashan as far as Salcah, all the kingdom of Og in Bashan, who 12 reigned in Ashtaroth and in Edrei (he was left of the remnant of the Rephaim) - those kings did Moses overthrow and dispossess.7 15 But the Israelites did not dispossess the Geshurites and the Maacha- 13 thites; Geshur and Maachath have dwelt in the midst of Israel down to this day. Only to the tribe of Levi +Moses+ gave no 14 inheritance: <">the God of Israel, JHVH, is their inheritance, as He had told them.

Heading of Account of Division of Castern Territory.

THESE are the inheritances in the plains of Moab, beyond the Jordan, opposite Jericho, which Moses gave to the Israelites.>

Inheritance of Reuben.

M OSES gave an inheritance to the tribe of the Reubenites 15 according to their clans. Their territory was from Aroer, 16 on the edge of the valley of the Arnon, and from the city in the middle of the valley, including all the plain near Medeba;
Heshbon, and all her cities in the plain: Dibon, Bamoth-baal, 17
Beth-baal-meon, Jahaza, Kedemoth, Mephaath, Kirjathaim, Sibmah, 18. 19
30 Zareth-shahar on the Mountain of the Valley, Beth-peor, the 20
Slopes of Pisgah, and Beth-jeshimoth; also all the cities of the 21 plain and all the kingdom of Sihon, king of the Amorites, who reigned in Heshbon, whom Moses had slaughtered with the princes of Midian, Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba, Sihon's chiefs, who 35 dwelt in the land, — the Israelites also put to the sword, among 22 those whom they slaughtered, the diviner Balaam ben-Beor. To The 23

This is the inheritance of the Reubenites according to their clans, the cities, and the villages belonging thereto.

Inheritance of Gad.

OSES had given -an inheritance- to the tribe of Gad, to the 5
Gadites according to their clans. Their territory was Jazer, and all the cities of Gilead, and half the land of the Ammonites, as far as Aroer east of Rabbah; and from Heshbon, as far as Ramath-mizpeh and Betonim; and from Mahanaim to the border of Lidebir; and in the valley: Beth-aram, Beth-nimrah, Succoth, to and Zaphon, the remainder of the kingdom of Sihon, king of Heshbon; the line of the Jordan -was their border- to the -southenr- end of the sea of Chinnereth beyond the Jordan eastward. This is the inheritance of the Gadites according to their clans, the cities, and the villages belonging thereto.

Inheritance of Castern Manasseh.

M OSES had given an inheritance to the half-tribe of Manasseh, 22 it was for the half-tribe of the Manassites according to their 30 clans; their territory was from Mahanaim, all Bashan, all the kingdom of Og, king of Bashan, all the towns of Jair, in Bashan, 20 sixty cities; half of Gilead, 23 and Ashtaroth and Edrei, the acapital cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

Conclusion of Account of Division of Castern Territory.

THESE are the inheritances which Moses had given in the plains of Moab, beyond the Jordan eastward, opposite Jericho . 25

- 13,31 ° to the Sons of Machir ben-Manasseh; to one-half of the Sons of Machir, according to their class 14
  - 33 <sup>s</sup>but to the tribe of Levi, Moses had given no inheritance; the God of Israel, Јнун, is their inheritance as He had told them

Heading of Account of Division of Western Territory."

THESE are the inheritances received by the Israelites in the 14,1 land of Canaan which the priest Eleazar and Joshua benNun and the heads of the families of the Israelites gave them | by 2
5 lot, (as) their inheritance, as JHVH had commanded, through Moses, for the nine tribes and the half-tribe. Moses had given the inherit- 3 ance of the two tribes and of the half-tribe beyond the Jordan, but to the Levites he had given no inheritance among them. The 4
Sons of Joseph were two tribes, Manasseh and Ephraim, and they 10 gave no portion of the land to the Levites, except cities to dwell in, and the pasture-lands belonging thereto for their cattle and their substance. The Israelites did as JHVH had commanded Moses, and 5 divided the land.

Inheritance of Caleb.

15 THE Judahites 2 approached Joshua in Gilgal, and the Kenezite 3 6 L Caleb ben-Jephunneh said to him: Thou knowest the word that JHVH spoke to Moses, the Man of God, on my behalf, and on thy behalf, in Kadesh-barnea. I was forty years old when 7 Moses, the Servant of JHVH, sent me from Kadesh-barnea to spy 20 out the land, and I brought him back word to the best of my knowledge; but my companions who went with me made the 8 heart of the people tremble, while I wholly followed my God, JHVH. Moses swore on that day: Verily, the land wherever thy 9 feet have trodden shall be an inheritance for thee and thy children 25 for ever, because thou hast wholly followed my God, JHVH. Now 10 THVH has kept me alive, as He said, for forty-five4 years, from the time when JHVH spoke this word to Moses, while Israel journeyed in the Wilderness; and now I am this day eighty-five years old. I am still as strong to-day as on the day when Moses sent II 30 me: as was my strength then, so is my strength now, for war and all manner of work; 5 so give me now the hill-country here, 12 whereof JHVH spoke on that day; thou heardest on that day that the giants 7 were there in great walled cities; perhaps JHVH will be with me, so that I shall dispossess them, as JHVH said. Then 13 35 Joshua blessed him, and gave Hebron as an inheritance to Caleb ben-Jephunneh. Thus Hebron<sup>6</sup> became the inheritance of the 14 Kenezite, Caleb ben-Jephunneh, +and so remains+ down to this day, because he wholly followed the God of Israel, JHVH. (The name 15 of Hebron was formerly Kirjath-arba; he, Arba+, was the greatest 40 among the giants.)7 Then the land had rest from war.

Inheritance of Judah.

15,1 THE lot for the tribe of the Judahites according to their clans I was toward the border of Edom, southward to the Wilder-2 ness of Zin, at the extreme south. Their southern border was from the end of the Salt Sea, from the bay that runs southward; 5 3 it began about the south of the Ascent of Acrabbim, and went on to Zin, and went up southward of Kadesh-barnea, and went on to 4 Hezron, and went up to Adar, and turned about to Karkaa, and it went on to Azmon, and ended at the Brook of Egypt, so that the end of the border was at the sea. This shall be your southern 10 5 border. The eastern border was the Salt Sea as far as the mouth of the Jordan. Their border on the north side was from the bay 6 of the sea at the mouth of the Jordan, and the border went up to Beth-hogla, and went on to the north of Beth-arabah, and the 7 border went up to the Stone of Bohan ben-Reuben; and the border 15 went up to Debir2 from the valley of Achor and northward in the direction of Gilgal,3 opposite the Ascent of Adummim, south of The Brook;4 and the border went on to the Waters of En-8 shemesh, and came to a point<sup>5</sup> at En-rogel; and the border went up through the Valley of Ben-Hinnom to the south of the ridge 20 of the Jebusites (that is, Jerusalem); and the border went up to the top of the mountain which lies to the west of the Valley of Hinnom 9 and at the northern end of the Valley of Rephaim; and the border inclined from the top of the mountain to the fountain of the Waters of Nephtoah and came to a point at the cities of Mount Ephron, 25 10 and the border inclined to Baalah (that is, Kirjath-jearim); 6 and the border turned about from Baalah westward to Mount Seir,7 and went on to the north of the ridge of Mount Jearim (that is, Chesalon), and went down to Beth-shemesh,8 and went on to Tim-11 nah; and the border came to a point at the ridge of Ekron on the 30 north, and the border inclined to Shicron, and went on to Mount Baalah, and ended by Jabneel, so that the end of the border was 12 at the sea. The western border was the coast-line of the Great Sea. This was the border of the Judahites round about according to their clans.

To Caleb ben-Jephunneh he gave a portion in the midst of the Judahites according to the commandment of JHVH to Joshua, namely 14 Kirjath-arba (*Arba* the father of Anak), that is, Hebron. Thence Caleb dispossessed the three giants: Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmai, 15 the sons of Anak. Thence he went up against the inhabitants of 40 16 Debir (the older name of Debir was Kirjath-sepher). And Caleb said: I will give my daughter Achsah in marriage to the man who attacks Kirjath-sepher, and takes it. Caleb's brother, Othniel ben-17 Kenaz, took it, and Caleb gave him his daughter Achsah in marriage. When she came to him he incited here to ask her 18 father for a piece of land. So she leaped down from her ass, and when her father asked: What is the matter? she answered: 19 Give me a present; thou hast put me off into the Negeb, therefore give me Gullath-maim. So Caleb gave her Gullath-illith and Gullath-tahti.

This is the inheritance of the tribe of the Judahites according 20 to their clans:

The +southern+ border towns of the tribe of Judah in the Ne- 21 geb 12 toward the territory of Edom were Kabzeel, Eder, Jagur, Kinah, Dimonah, A-17-a-17-ah, 13 Kedesh, Hazor, Ithnan, Ziph, Telem, 22-24 Bealoth, Hazor-hadattah, 14 Kerioth-hezron (that is, Hazor), 15 Amam, 25.26 Shema, Moladah, Hazar-gaddah, Heshmon, Beth-palet, Hazar-shual, 27.28 Beer-sheba and -its dependent towns-, 16 Baalah, Iim, Azem, Eltolad, 29.30 Bethu-l, 17 Hormah, Ziklag, Madmannah, Sansannah, Lebaoth, Shil- 31.32 him, -En-17-immon; 18—twenty-nine 19 cities with the villages belonging thereto.

- 61.62 In the Wilderness: Beth-arabah, Middin, Secacah, Nibshan, the City of Salt, and En-gedi;—six cities with the villages belonging to them.
  - But the Judahites could not dispossess the Jebusites who inhabited Jerusalem; the Jebusites live with the Judahites in Jerusalem to the present day.<sup>27</sup>

Inheritance of the Josephites.

THE border of the Josephites was from the Jordan near 15

Jericho to the east of the Waters of Jericho, near the Wilderness that extends from Jericho through the Hill-country to Bethel [ ], and it came to a point at Beth-el [], and went on to the border of the Archites at Ataroth, and came down westward to the border of the Japhletites, to the border of Lower Beth-horon 20 and to Gezer, and came to an end at the sea. So the Josephites, Manasseh and Ephraim, received their inheritance.

Inheritance of the Ephraimites.

THE territory of the Ephraimites according to their clans was 3

* * * * * * *, and the *southern* border of their inheritance 25

6 was *from* Ataroth-addar on the east to Upper Beth-horon, and the border ended at the sea. Ephraimites, according to their clans, *together* with the cities that 9 were set aside for the Ephraimites in the midst of the inheritance of the Manassites,—all the cities with the villages belonging thereto. They did not dispossess 6 the Canaanites who dwelt in Gezer; to the Canaanites have dwelt in the midst of Ephraim down to this day, but *the Canaanites* had to labor for them.

Inheritance of the Tribe of Manasseh.

THE tribe of Manasseh had its lot; *Manasseh was the firstborn 17,1 of Joseph. Machir, the firstborn of Manasseh, the father of Gilead, had Gilead and Bashan, because he was warlike. The rest 2 of the Manassites had *their lot* according to their clans, the Abi-ezrites, Helekites, Asrielites, Shechemites, Hepherites, and Shemidites.* These were the male Manassites according to their 15 clans.

Zelophehad<sup>2</sup> ben-Hepher ben-Gilead ben-Machir ben-Manasseh 3 had no sons but only daughters. These are the names of his daughters: Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. They went 4 to the priest Eleazar and Joshua ben-Nun and the Princes, and 20 said: Jhvh commanded Moses that an inheritance should be given us among our fellow-tribesmen; and according to the commandment of Jhvh he gave them an inheritance among their father's fellow-tribesmen.

The portions that fell to Manasseh were ten,3 apart from the 5 25 land of Gilead and Bashan beyond the Jordan (the daughters of 6 Manasseh received an inheritance among his sons, and the rest of the Manassites had the land of Gilead). The +southern+ border of 7 Manasseh was from Asher to Michmethah, which is east of Shechem, and the border went southward to the +land of the+ inhabi-30 tants of En-tappuah. Manasseh had the land of Tappuah, but the 8 Ephraimites had Tappuah on the border of Manasseh. The border 9 went down to the Brook of Kanah to the southern side of the brook * * * * * Ephraim had these cities in the midst of the cities of Manasseh * * * The border of Manasseh was along 35 the northern bank of The Brook, and it came to an end at the sea. Ephraim had +the land+ to the south, and Manasseh to the north. 10 The +western+ border +of Manasseh+ was the sea; they 5 touched Asher on the north, and Issachar on the east. But Manasseh had II in Issachar and in Asher [the three heights6 | but Manasseh did 40 not conquer . Beth-shean? with the villages belonging thereto, nor

17 Ibleam and its villages, nor the inhabitants of Dor, on of Taa12 nach, nor of Megiddo, with their villages []; for the Canaanites
13 maintained themselves resolutely in that region. But when Israel became strong they subjected the Canaanites to forced labor, but did not dispossess them.9

Extra Lot for the Josephites.10

THE "House." of Joseph said to Joshua: Why hast thou given us *but* one lot as an inheritance although we are a great people, seeing that hitherto Jhuh has blessed us? Joshua said to them: If ye are a great people, go up into the Forest, and hew out *room enough* for yourselves there, if the Hill-country of Ephraim is too narrow for you. The "House" of Joseph said: The Hill-country is not enough for us, but all the Canaanites who inhabit the land of the Valley have chariots of iron, to both those who are in Beth-shean and its dependent towns and those who are in the Valley of Jezreel. Joshua said to the House of Joseph: Ye are a great people, and have great strength; ye shall not have one lot only, to but ye shall have the Hill-country to Gileadthough it *also* is forest; ye will hew it down, and it shall be yours; to but ye must dispossess the Canaanites, though they have so iron chariots, and are strong.

Seven Tribes receive their Inheritance.

- THE whole Congregation of the Israelites gathered together at Shiloh, and there they established the Tent of Meeting, the land having been subdued by them. There were left of the 15 Israelites seven tribes, to whom their inheritance had not been apportioned.

  Therefore Joshua said to the Israelites. How long will ye delay to go in and take possession of the land, which the God of your fathers, JHVH, has given you? Take three men for each tribe, $\int \text{let 18.4} them set out, and go through the land, and map it out into suitable inheritances .for. their .tribes., then come back to me. They may divide 5 it into seven portions. Judah may remain in its territory in the south, 5 and the House of Joseph may remain in their territory in the north. Map out the land into seven portions, and bring back +your report 6 hither to me, then I will cast lots for you here in the presence of our God, JHVH. The Levites have no portion among you: the 7 priesthood of JHVH is their inheritance; but Gad, and Reuben, and to the half-tribe of Manasseh received their inheritance beyond the Jordan eastward, which Moses, the Servant of JHVH, had given to them. The men set out, and went, and Joshua said to those who 8 went to map out the land: Go, pass through the land, map it out; then return to me, here will I cast lots for you in Shiloh. 15 went, and passed through the land, and mapped it out by cities in seven portions on a scroll,3 and they broughts back their reports to Joshua in camp at Shiloh. Then Joshua cast lots for them in Shiloh in 10 the presence of JHVH, and there divided the land for the Israelites according to their divisions.

Inheritance of Genjamin.

HEN the lot of the tribe of the Benjamites came out accord- 11 ing to their clans, the territory allotted to them was to lie between the Judahites and the Josephites. Their border on the 12 north side was from the Jordan, and went up to the ridge northward 25 of Jericho and up through the Hill-country westward, passing into the Wilderness of Beth-aven; thence the border went on to Luz, 13 to the south of the ridge of Luz (that is, Beth-el); then the border went down to Ataroth-adar near the mountain south of Lower Beth-horon. The border inclined, and turned about on the western 14 30 side southward from the mountain in the south opposite Beth-horon, and came to a point at Kirjath-baal (that is, Kirjath-jearim), a city of the Judahites. This was the western side. # Concluding Summary.

J HVH gave to Israel all the land which He had sworn to give 43 to their fathers; they took possession of it, and settled in it.

JHVH gave them rest round about, just as He had sworn to 44 their fathers; of all their enemies not a man was able to hold his own against them: JHVH gave all their enemies into their hand.

25 Nothing failed of all good things that JHVH had promised to the 45 House of Israel; everything was fulfilled.

Return of the Two Tribes and of the Half-tribe."

THEN Joshua called the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the 22, I half-tribe of Manasseh, and said to them: Ye have kept all 2 that Moses, the Servant of Jhvh, commanded you, and ye have hearkened to my voice in all that I have commanded you; ye have 3 not abandoned your brethren all this time until this day, and ye have been careful to observe the commandment of your God, Jhvh. Your God, Jhvh, has now given rest to your brethren, as He said 4 22 to them; depart then, and go to your tents, to the land of your possession, which Moses, the Servant of Jhvh, gave you, 5 beyond the Jordan. Only be exceedingly careful to observe the commandment and the Law, which Moses, the Servant of Jhvh, commanded you, to love your God, Jhvh, and to follow all His 5 ways, and keep His commandments, and cleave to Him, and to 6 serve Him with all your heart, and with all your soul. Then Joshua blessed them, and sent them away; and they went to their tents.

To the half-tribe of Manasseh Moses had given +an inheritance+ 10 in Bashan; to the +other+ half Joshua gave +an inheritance+ with their brethren beyond the Jordan westward.

When Joshua sent them away to their tents and blessed them of they return-ed-2 to their tents with much wealth and very much cattle, silver and gold, bronze and iron, and great abundance of 15 raiment, and divide-d-2 the spoil of their enemies with their brethren.

Altar of the Two Tribes and of the Half-tribe.3

9 THE Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh I returned, and departed from the Israelites from Shiloh,4 in the 20 land of Canaan, to go to the land of Gilead, the land of their possession, whereof they had been given possession according to 10 JHVH's commandment through Moses. When they came to the regions of the Jordan, in the land of Canaan, the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh built there an altar 25 in near the Jordan, a great, conspicuous altar. Word was brought to the Israelites: Behold the Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh have built an altar opposite 5 the land of Canaan in the regions of the Jordan beyond the land of the 12 Israelites. When the Israelites heard +that+, the whole Congregation 30 of the Israelites gathered themselves together at Shiloh to march 13 against them. The Israelites sent to the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to the half-tribe of Manasseh, to the land of Gilead, 14 the priest Phinehas ben-Eleazar, with ten princes, one prince of a family for each of the tribes of +Western+ Israel; each man was the 35 15 head of a family among the thousands of Israel. They came to the Reubenites, and to the Gadites, and to the half-tribe of Manasseh, 16 to the land of Gilead, and said to them: The whole Congregation of JHVH sends this message:6 What is this breach of faith which ye have committed against the God of Israel in turning away this 40 day from Jhvh to build for yourselves an altar, and to rebel this day against Jhvh? Was the iniquity of Peor? too little for us, 17 from which we have not cleansed ourselves even to this day, and +on account of which+ the plague came upon the Congregation of Jhvh? Yet ye will turn away this day from Jhvh, and if ye 18 rebel against Jhvh to-day, to-morrow there will be wrath against the whole Congregation of Israel. Moreover, if the land of your 19 possession be unclean, pass over to the land of Jhvh's possession, where the Dwelling of Jhvh stands, and receive a possession in the midst of us, but do not rebel either against Jhvh or against us, by building for yourselves an altar other than the altar of our God, Jhvh. Was not Achan ben-Zerah guilty of a breach of 20 faith? yet wrath fell upon the whole Congregation of Israel, and not he alone perished in his iniquity.

The Reubenites, and the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasseh 21 answered the heads of the thousands of Israel: EL ELOHIM JHVH, 22 EL ELOHIM JHVH,8 He knows and Israel shall know: if +we acted+ in rebellion or unfaithfulness against Јнvн (do not spare us this day!) in building for ourselves an altar to turn from following 23 20 JHVH, or to offer up thereon burnt-offerings, or cereal offerings, or peace-offerings, let IHVH Himself require it. We have not done 24 this save from fear of what might happen, thinking that hereafter your sons might say to our sons: What have ye to do with JHVH, the God of Israel, seeing that JHVH has put a barrier between us 25 25 and you, ye Reubenites and Gadites, namely, the Jordan; ye have no portion in JHVH; and your sons cause our sons to cease from fearing JHVH. So we said: Let us make for ourselves * * *9 26 by building the altar neither for burnt-offering nor for sacrifice; but it shall be a witness between us, and between our sons, and 27 30 between our descendants, that we are to perform the service of JHVH before Him with our burnt-offerings, and sacrifices, and peaceofferings, and that your sons shall not say hereafter to our sons: Ye have no portion in JHVH. When they speak thus hereafter to 28 us and to our descendants, we thought to say: Behold the 35 fashion of the altar of JHVH which our fathers made neither for burnt-offering nor for sacrifice; but it is a witness between us and you; far be it from us to rebel against JHVH, and to turn this day 29 from Invh by building an altar for burnt-offering, or cereal offering, or sacrifice, other than the altar of our God, Jhyh, which +stands+ 40 before His Dwelling.

When the priest Phinehas and the Princes of the Congregation heard the words that were spoken by the Reubenites and 31 the Gadites and the Manassites, they were satisfied. The priest, Phinehas ben-Eleazar, said to the Reubenites and the Gadites and the Manassites: To-day we know that JHVH is in the midst of us, 5 because ye have not been guilty of this breach of faith against IHVH; now have ye delivered the Israelites out of the hand of IHVH. 10 32 Then the priest Phinehas ben-Eleazar and the Princes returned from the Reubenites and the Gadites, from the land of Gilead to the land of Canaan, to the Israelites, and brought them word again. 10 33 The Israelites were satisfied, and blessed God, and spoke no +more+ of marching against them to lay waste the land inhabited by 34 the Reubenites and Gadites. The Reubenites and the Gadites called the altar Gal-'ed-xx +saying+: It shall be a witness between us that JHVH is God.

Joshua's First Farewell.

AFTER a long time, when JHVH had given rest to Israel from 1 all their enemies round about, and Joshua was old and 2 advanced in years, he called all Israel with their elders, heads, judges, and officers, and said to them: I am old and advanced in 20 3 years, and ye have seen all that your God, JHVH, has done to all those nations, in overthrowing them, at your approach; for 4 your God, Jнvн, He has fought for you. Behold I have allotted to you those nations that remain as an inheritance for your tribes: from the Jordan * * with all the nations that I have extir- 25 pated * * <as far as> the Great Sea in the West <shall be your 5 territory». ч Your God, Jнvн, He shall drive them out, and dispossess them to make room for you; ye shall possess their land as your 6 God, JHVH, told you. Be very firm faithfully to observe all that is written in the Book of the Law of Moses, lest ye turn from it 30 7 to the right hand or to the left, or go among these nations, these that are left with you; or mention the name of their gods or swear 8 by them, or serve them or bow down to them; ye must cleave 9 to your God, Jhvh, as ye have done down to this day. Jhvh has dispossessed, to make room for you, nations great and powerful, 23 and as for yourselves, not a man has held his own against you until this day. One man of you chased a thousand; it was your to God, JHVH, who fought for you, as He told you. Take good II 5 care therefore to love your God, JHVH. But if ye in any wise 12 turn, and ally yourselves with the remnant of these nations, those that are left with you, and make marriages with them, and mix with them, and they with you, ye will surely learn that your God, 13 IHVH, will no more dispossess those nations in your favor, and 10 they will become to you a snare, a trap, and a scourge to your sides, and thorns in your eyes, until ye are extirpated from this good land which your God, IHVH, has given you. Behold I go 14 to-day the way of all the earth, and ye know with all your heart and soul that not one thing has failed of all the good things which 15 your God, JHVH, spoke concerning you; they have all been fulfilled for you: not one of them has failed. And as all the good things 15 have come to you that your God, IHVH, promised you, so will IHVH bring upon you all the evil things, until He extirpate you from this good land which your God, JHVH, has given you; when 16 20 ye transgress the covenant with JHVH which He commanded you, by going to worship and bow down to other gods. <>

Joshua's Second Farewell; the Covenant.

OSHUA gathered all the tribes of Israel to Shechem, and called 24, 1 the elders, heads, judges, and officers of Israel, and they presented themselves before God. Then Joshua said to all 2 the people: Thus says the God of Israel, Jhvh: Your fathers lived of old beyond the river +Euphrates+, Terah, the father of Abraham and Nahor, and worshiped other gods. I took your 3 father Abraham from beyond the river +Euphrates+, and led him 30 throughout all the land of Canaan, and I increased his progeny, and gave him Isaac. I gave Jacob and Esau to Isaac; and 4 I gave Mount Seir to Esau to possess it, while Jacob and his

24.5 sons went down to Egypt.4 I sent Moses and Aaron, and I plagued Egypt with portents.5 which I did in the midst of them, and 6 afterward I brought you out. I brought out your fathers from Egypt, and ve came to the sea, and the Egyptians pursued your fathers, with 7 chariots6 and horsemen to the Red Sea, and they cried to JHVH, and 5 He put darkness between you and the Egyptians. He brought the sea upon them, and covered them, and your eyes saw what 8 He did in Egypt. Ye lived a long time in the Wilderness. I brought you to the land of the Amorites who lived beyond the Jordan, and they fought against you, and I gave them into your 10 hand; ye took possession of their land, while I destroyed them to 9 make room for you. Then the King of Moab, Balak ben-Zippor, undertook to make war7 upon Israel, and called Balaam ben-Beor 10 to curse you. But I would not listen to Balaam, and he had to 11 bless you, and I delivered you out of his hand. Then ye passed 15 over the Jordan, and came to Jericho, and the men 8 of Jericho fought9 against you, the Amorites, Perizzites, Canaanites, Hittites, Girgashites, Hivites, and Jebusites, but I gave them into your hand. 12 I sent before you the hornets, to they drove out before you the tw-elve-12 kings of the Amorites, neither by your sword nor by your bow. 20 13 I gave you a land for which ye had not labored, and cities which ye had not built; ye settled in them; ye ate of vineyards and olive 14 yards which ye had not planted. 12 Now, therefore, fear JHVH, and worship Him loyally and faithfully; put away 13 the gods which your fathers worshiped beyond the river +Euphrates+ and in 25 15 Egypt; worship JHVH! If ye are not willing to worship JHVH, choose this day whom ye will worship, whether the gods your fathers worshiped who +lived+ beyond the river +Euphrates+, or the gods of the Amorites in whose land ve live; but as for me and my House, we will worship JHVH. 30 The people answered: Far be it from us to forsake JHVH

The people answered: Far be it from us to forsake Jhvh to worship other gods. Jhvh is our God, it was He who brought up ourselves and our fathers out of the land of Egypt where we were bondmen, and who did those great signs before our -very-eyes, and kept us all the way wherever we went, and among all 35 the peoples through the midst of whom we passed. Jhvh drove out before us all the peoples and the Amorites who inhabited the land. We, too, will worship Jhvh, for He is our God. Joshua said to the people: Ye cannot worship Jhvh; He is a holy God; He is a jealous God; He will not forgive your transgression and 40 your sins. If ye forsake Jhvh, and worship strange gods, He, will turn, and do evil to you, and consume you, after He has 24 done you good. But the people said to Joshua: Not so, we will 21 worship Jhvh. Then Joshua said to the people: Ye are witnesses 22 against yourselves, that ye yourselves have chosen Jhvh to worship 5 Him. "> Now, therefore, put away the strange gods who are among 23 you, and give your heart to Jhvh, the God of Israel. The people 24 said to Joshua: We will worship our God, Jhvh; Him will we obey.

Then Joshua made a covenant on behalf of the people that 25 day, establishing statutes and ordinances for them at Shechem.

10 Joshua wrote these words in the Book of the Law of God, 14 took a 26 great stone, and set it up there under the Oak that was in the sanctuary of Jhvh. Joshua said to all the people: This stone 27 shall bear witness against us, it has heard all the words of Jhvh which He spoke with us, and it shall bear witness against you, 15 lest ye deny your God. Then 15 Joshua dismissed the people to 28 their several possessions.

Motes on Joshua

NASMUCH as the Book of Joshua is an integral part of the Hexateuch (i. e. Pentateuch + Joshua), the reader is referred for information as to date, authorship, and composition to the Introductions to the previous books.

By way of brief recapitulation, the process of composition of the Hexateuch may be described as follows. Two parallel works, viz. the Judaic document (J) and the Ephraimitic document (E), were compiled between 850 and 650 B.C.; these were afterward

The first edition of Deuteronomy (D) was promulgated under Josiah in 621 B. C., having been composed shortly before. This work was afterward supplemented and combined with JE, by editors writing, at various times, in the style and spirit of Deuteronomy and denoted by the symbol R<sup>D</sup> (cf. below, note 1 on c. 1). The result of this second combination was a still more composite work designated as JED.

A fourth work, parallel to J and E, but mainly devoted to Ritual Legislation, was compiled, by Priestly Writers, in successive stages in Babylonia during and after the Exile, and is known as the Priestly Code (P), including P* as a 20 later stratum. This was combined with JED by priestly redactors (RP) about 440-400 B.C. The result of this last combination was the complete Hexateuch, from which the portion now known as the Book of Joshua was separated, either at that time or somewhat later, in order to emphasize the Mosaic authorship of the Law; or, perhaps, the Joshua sections of JED and P were 25 separated from the preceding sections before the latter were combined to form the Pentateuch.

Three points should be noticed as peculiar to the Book of Joshua:-

(a) Whereas the Pentateuch under the title of the Torah became the first Canon of the Hebrew Scriptures, the Book of Joshua was relegated to the 30 second (Prophetical) stratum of the Hebrew Canon. Hence the history of its text is different from that of the Pentateuch. Not being part of the authoritative Code of Judaism, it was not subject to the emendations and modifications necessarily made in such a code; but, on the other hand, it was more liable to unauthoritative alterations, and would be likely to suffer more from careless 35 copying. Further, the Septuagint translation of Joshua is by other hands than that of the Pentateuch.

- (b) In combining JE and D, RD made comparatively few alterations in the JE narratives of the period before the death of Moses, but dealt very freely with the IE sections relating to the Conquest.
- (c) In the Pentateuch, P is used as a framework; in Joshua, JED (see above, p. 44, l. 16).

Sources of the Book.

- The JE sections relating to the Conquest constitute a special difficulty in the literary analysis of Joshua. P and the original matter of RD and RP can be distinguished with comparative certainty. But I and E are similar in character and subject, and were somewhat carefully combined by RJE; hence the separa- 10 tion of I and E is always difficult. In Joshua, however, the difficulty has been increased by RD, who have further harmonized their materials. The problem with regard to the analysis of J and E in Joshua may be stated as follows: -
- (i) The whole book has passed through the hands of RP, and the JE sections through the hands of RJE and RD. These Redactors use phrases &c. 15 of I and E in their redactional work, and in the small fragments the style of different hands cannot be always distinguished. Hence the reference of a passage to J, E, or JE does not exclude the presence of neutral material introduced by RJE, RD, or even RP. Such passages, however, remain substantially in their earlier form.
- (ii) On the other hand, as the Redactors had these earlier sources before them, the reference of a passage to RJE, RD or RP does not exclude the possibility of its being based on earlier material, or the use in it of IE phrases. Such passages, however, have been so completely recast by the Redactors that they rest simply on their authority; cf. 22, 9-34.
- 25 (iii) In JE narratives (as distinguished from the E speech in c. 24) two parallel accounts can be clearly detected, especially in cc. 3-9. The leading characteristics also of each story can be pointed out. The reference in the several cases of the one story to J, and the other to E, is also fairly established, though not yet universally accepted. But in cc. 3-9 there is much 30 neutral material which might be equally well referred to either of the two stories, or two sources, and the distribution of this material cannot be always made with entire confidence. These remarks apply with special force to the separation of the older and later strata of J and E, i. e. of J<sup>1</sup> from J<sup>2</sup>, and E<sup>1</sup> from E2.
- (iv) In the Account of the Division of the land in cc. 13-19, fragments of earlier sources, probably of JE, are entangled in the P sections. Some have been pointed out, but it is not certain whether in these sections we have a use of earlier sources by P itself, or a combination of P with these sources by RP.

Explanation of Colors.

In the foregoing translation these sources of the Book of Joshua are represented by colors as follows: -

DARK RED (e. g. 10, 13) is used for Older Strata (about 850 B. C.) of the Judaic Document, I (see above, p. 44, l. 8 and cf. Notes on Judges, p. 48, l. 24).

LIGHT RED (e. g. 2, 12-14) is employed for Later Strata (about 750-650 45 B. C.) of J ( J2).

DARK BLUE (e. g. 6, 5) represents Older Strata (about 750 B.C.) of the Ephraimitic Document, E (see above, p. 44, 1.8).

LIGHT BLUE (e. g. I, I.2) indicates Later Strata (about 650 B. C.) of E (E2). Purple, the combination of RED and Blue, (e. g. 2, 1-9) represents the 50 composite document JE (about 630 B.C.), that is, those parts of the Prophetical Narrative of the Hexateuch, in which the Judaic Document (J) and the Ephraimitic Document (E) are so intimately fused that they cannot be separated by literary analysis. G. Notes on Judges, p. 46, ll. 26.41; p. 53, l. 35.

GREEN (e. g. 1, 3-9) indicates R<sup>D</sup> (see above, p. 44, l. 14), that is, Deuter-5 onomistic Expansions (additions written in the spirit of Deuteronomy about 570-540 B.C.).

Brown (e. g. 22,9-34) is used for P* (see above, p. 44, l. 19), that is, Later Strata (440-400 B. C.) of the Priestly Code (P), the main body of which (compiled in Babylonia about 500 B. C.) is printed on a white background with 10 out any additional coloring (e. g. 5, 10-12).

ORANGE is employed for the fragment 5,13-15, the source of which is unknown; see p. 62, l. 24. The purple border around this section indicates that it has been introduced by the compiler of JE.

Italics indicate the latest strata of the respective documents, especially 15 Redactional Changes or Additions, made in the process of uniting and harmonizing different sources, or in adjusting the narrative to the point of view of the editors, or under the influence of a parallel passage; see Judges, p. 46, ll. 48; Leviticus, p. 93, l. 31; p. 94, ll. 1-7; p. 95, l. 53; p. 96, l. 3.

Italies on UNCOLORED background (e. g. 5, 6.7) =  $\mathbb{R}^{P}$  (about B. c. 440-400; 20 see above, p. 44, l. 20).

Halics on GREEN background (e. g. 11, 21.22) = redactional adjustments &c. of R<sup>D</sup> (about 570-540 B. C.; see above, l. 4).

25 Italics on Brown background (e. g. 22, 10) =  $\mathbb{R}^{p*}$  (about 440-400 B. C.; see above, 1. 7).

The symbols • • (e. g. 7, 15.21.25) indicate Doublets of adjacent words (or clauses) which are presumably from a different source, although we have no clue as to which document either should be referred to (cf. note 21 on c. 7, 30 p. 66, l. 22; also p. 64, l. 18).

For the explanation of the other critical marks,  $\leadsto$ ,  $\circ$ , &c., see above, pp. v and vi.

Place of Joshua in the History of Israel.

The Book of Joshua is parallel to Jud. 1. The picture drawn of the Con35 quest by these two authorities is, however, quite different. In Joshua the conquest is effected by United Israel under the single leadership of Joshua in a series of systematic and continuous campaigns; the conquest is immediate and complete. In Judges the conquest is a gradual process; separate portions of the country are conquered by independent operations of individual tribes.
40 The conquest is far from complete. An examination of Joshua shows that the picture of an immediate and thorough subjection of the whole country is due to the interpretation put upon the history by R<sup>D</sup>, and that the earlier sources of Joshua agree with Jud. 1 and are in part identical with it. The view taken by these earlier sources is historical; that introduced into Joshua by R<sup>D</sup>, and 45 possibly also by R<sup>JE</sup>, is due to a mistaken theory of history, as are also the statements of R<sup>D</sup> and P about the observance of the Law of Moses. There are no trustworthy data in OT by which the chronology of the Conquest can be determined; nor have they been yet furnished by Egyptian or Assyrian inscriptions. The Exodus has been often referred to the reign of Merneptah (about 1300-1266 B.C.), and the absence of any reference to Egypt in the Books of Joshua and Judges would suit the period of weakness through which Egypt passed in the closing years of the Nineteenth Dynasty (1266-1200 B.C.). 5 But an inscription of Merneptah has been recently discovered which mentions Israel amongst other Palestinian peoples conquered by Merneptah (cf. note 11 on Ezek. 37), so that, apparently, the Exodus must be placed earlier. Some archeologists have identified the Khabiri, who appear as an aggressive power in Palestine in the time of Amenophis IV. (Ikh-en-ahn; see below, p. 49, l. 6), to with the Hebrews; but this view is precarious; see l. 27 and p. 53, l. 28a.

At any rate, our early information agrees with the Book of Joshua in representing Palestine as divided up among a number of small city-states, each with its own king. It was also mostly tributary to Egypt. Compare the remarks on the Chronology of the Book of Judges, p. 45 of the Notes on Judges; and, 15 for the account of the Conquest, ibid. p. 47, l. 32.

Tel el-Amarna Tablets.

The famous discovery of cuneiform tablets, which has made Tel el-Amarna a household word among Bible students, was made in 1887. Many of the discoveries in Egypt and Assyria have been barren of any results immediately 20 bearing on the Sacred Scriptures, and experts have been often tempted to soothe popular impatience by ingenious but erroneous conjectures. Even now, indeed, we are probably not brought face to face with the actual characters and events of Hebrew history. Lt.-Col. Conder's proposed identification of Ebed-tob, king of Jerusalem, with Joshua's Adoni-zedec is not accepted by 25 other scholars, nor has the theory that the Hebrews are mentioned under the name Khabiri met with general approval. But these tablets throw a flood of light on Egypt and Western Asia, and especially on Palestine, about 1400 B. C.;* probably some time before the Exodus and Conquest. The information obtained from this wonderful discovery is a joint contribution of Assyriology 30 and Egyptology.

Tel el-Amarna, about 180 miles south of Cairo by river, was the site of the palace of Amenophis IV., the son and successor of Amenophis III. The latter seems to have reigned about B.C. 1414-1379. Amenophis is the Greek form of the Egyptian name Amen-hotep. The throne name of this king was Neb-mait-5 Rê' (that is, Rê or Ra, the Sungod, is the Lord of Truth), which appears in the Amarna Tablets in the form Nibmuaria, Nimmūria, &c. (see below, p. 51, l. 6).* He seems to have ascended the throne in his sixteenth year, and is said to have been a mighty hunter who slew more than a hundred lions with his own hand during the first ten years of his reign. Then he married and 10 apparently relinquished this dangerous sport. His only campaign was against the Ethiopians in his fifth regnal year. He married Gilukhêpa, a sister of King Dushratta of Mitân (see below, p. 49, l. 34), and also an Egyptian lady, Teie, the mother of Amenophis IV. (see p. 50, l. 9). Numerous temples were erected by Amenophis III., especially at Luxor and Karnak, on the site

15 of Thebes, the ancient capital of Upper Egypt. The annexed engraving represents one 9 of the two famous colossal statues of 20 Amenophis III. on the western bank of the Nile near Thebes (see Ezekiel, p. 159). It is the more southern of the two stat-25 ues, commonly known as the Colossi of Memnon. The other, which is still more mutilated, is the celebrated Vocal Statue 30 of Memnon, so-called because for about two centuries, at the beginning of the Christian era, it emitted a harplike 35 sound at sunrise.7 that period these colossi were looked upon as statues of Memnon who commanded the Ethio-

40 pian allies of the Trojans, and the musical wonder was explained as Memnon's greeting to his mother, Eos, the goddess of The sound (which was morn. heard no more after the colossus was repaired about A. D. 200) may have been produced by the influence of the heat of the sun suddenly following upon the cold nights in Egypt. Similar phenomena have been observed elsewhere: Karnak and Syene; east of Damascus; in the Pyrenees; on the banks of the Orinoco, &c.

The son and successor of Amenophis III., the heretical king Amenophis IV. (later Ikh-en- atn; see below, p. 49, l. 6) reigned about B.C.1383-1365. His throne name was the old polytheistic religion of Egypt by the exclusive worship of the Sun. He prohibited the cult of Amon and of all other gods, especially those of Thebes; their images were destroyed and their names erased from the walls of the temples and other public buildings. He changed his own name Amenophis (Amen-hotep, which contains the name of the god Amon) into Ikh-en-5 atn (Khu-en-aten, Akh-en-aten), that is, Spirit of the Sun (or Splendor of the Solar Disk; see Isaiah, p. 143). He left the residence of his father, Thebes, and built, half-way between Thebes and Memphis, in Middle Egypt, a new magnificent capital, Khul-atn (that is, Horizon of the Sun), the site of which is now known as Tel el-Amarna. After his death, however, a reaction set in: 10 his innovations were abolished, his name erased from monuments, and the new city he had founded was destroyed.

The majority of the cuneiform dispatches found in the record-chamber of the royal palace at Tel el-Amarna are addressed to Amenophis IV. or to his ministers. The tablets, numbering over 300, are part of the official correspon- 15 dence of this king, and of his father, with the kings of Babylonia and Assyria and of the other states of Western Asia, and especially with the Egyptian officials and subject-allies in Palestine. A remarkable feature of this correspondence is that the letters are in the cuneiform character, and in the Babylonian language. It thus appears that Babylonian was the language of diplomacy in 20 Western Asia and Syria, and these tablets show that Egyptians had some acquaintance even with Babylonian mythology. [One of the tablets (No. 240 in the edition of the Berlin Museum) contains a Babylonian mythological text, known as the Adapa Legend (cf. JASTROW, Religion of Babylonia and Assyria, Boston, 1898, p. 544). The cuneiform text of this legend has been marked by 25 an Egyptian scribe with a number of dots in black ink. Another mythological text (No. 82 in the edition of the British Museum; cf. ibid. pl. 17) refers to the goddess of the nether world, the consort of Nergal (2 Kings 17, 30), and to her messenger Namtâr (see JASTROW, op. cit., pp. 570. 584).8 This text is marked with dots in red ink. The practice of marking short clauses or sentences with 30 red dots was common in Egypt.

Several of the cuneiform dispatches have dockets in Egyptian hieratic characters, recording the date of their arrival in Egypt, the name of the sender, &c. For instance, in one of the letters of King Dushratta of Mitân (in northern Mesopotamia, on the eastern bank of the Euphrates, north of the 35 mouth of the river Belias, Arab. el-Balikh) to Amenophis IV., we find, on the lonia; and the kings of the Hittites, and of Alashia, on the other. The letters of Dushratta and Kadashman-Bel show that the Egyptian kings of the 18th dynasty frequently intermarried with the royal house of Mitan, and less often with that of Babylon. One letter, from which we give extracts, a strikingly illustrates the relations of these great powers of 1400 B.C. This letter is from 5 Nibmuaria (Amenophis III.) to Kadashman-Bel. In a previous letter Nibmuaria had asked for Kadashman-Bel's daughter in marriage; and Kadashman-Bel, in his reply, had demurred, because he was doubtful about the treatment of his sister, who had been previously sent to Egypt. The letter opens:—

To Kadashman-Bel, King of Karduniash, my brother, from Nibmuaria, the great 10 King, the King of Egypt, your brother. I am well, may you be well; with your house, your wives, your sons, your chief men, your horses, your chariots, and your lands, may it be very well. I am well; with my house, my wives, my sons, my chief men, my horses, my chariots, my people, it is very well; and with my lands it is very well.

Verily, I have heard the communication, which you have written me, namely:

"You wish, indeed, my daughter to wife, although my sister, whom my father gave you, is there with you, and no one has seen her as yet, whether she is alive, or whether she is dead."

These are your words, which you, in your letter, have written me. But you have 20 never sent a kamirn,  $\theta$  who knows your sister, who could have conversed with, and could have recognized her, and could have spoken with her. The people, whom you sent . . . there is not one among them, who stood near (2) your father.

And when you write:

"Even if you command my messengers and your wives, that they should all 25 come together in open session, in your presence, and even if you (Pharaoh) say (to the messengers): 'Behold your mistress, who stands before you,' nevertheless my messengers do not know whether she (really) is my sister, who is with you. . . . Who knows but what she may be the daughter of a beggar, or of a Gagean,' or a maiden of Khanigalbat, or who knows, whether she is from Ugarit, she whom my 30 messengers see . . . When my messengers come there and speak with her, they ought to bring me a present from her, as proof of the fact that she is with you."—(Extract from No. 1, in Winckler's translation; Petrie, No. 13.)

Later letters show that Kadashman-Bel was induced to send his daughter to Amenophis; so that we may hope that Kadashman-Bel's sister, about whom 35 he was anxious, was living in all due state and honor at the Egyptian court.

Other letters also, of this class, refer to intermarriages between the various royal houses. Romance, however, is much mixed up with business; and the kings are very keen to obtain satisfactory presents from each other. They seem to have bartered princesses, gold, and other valuable products. For 4 instance, in a letter from Kadashman-Bel's successor, Burraburiash, to Napkhûraria (Amenophis IV. of Egypt), the Babylonian king makes the following complaint:

Your messengers have come three times, but you have sent no beautiful present; and I, too, no beautiful present at all have I sent you. If nothing is refused me, I will refuse you nothing. Your messenger, whom you sent, the 20 minas of gold, which 45 he brought, were not complete, and when it was put in the furnace, it did not amount to 5 minas . . . Animals, be they of the country, be they of the city (?), as if they were alive shall they be made; the skin, as if it were alive, I will prepare, your messenger shall bring (them) . . . As your present I send you 2 minas of azure stone . . . your daughter, my son's wife . . . a necklace of gems and azure stones, 50 1048 in number, I have sent you for her present.—(WINCKLER, No. 8; PETRIE, No. 19.)

Apparently only betrothed and still at home.

Probably these state embassies partook of the character of trading caravans, and furnished an opportunity for other commerce besides the interchange of presents and princesses between the sovereigns of Egypt, Babylon, Mitân, and the Hittites. Doubtless, too, other caravans passed to and fro between these different 5 countries. The caravan routes passed either through Palestine or along its borders; so that the Amarna Tablets imply considerable intercourse between Palestine and these neighboring empires.

(ii) The Second Group of Letters refers to Northern Syria and Phænicia. At the beginning of the period covered by this correspondence, these regions, to as well as the rest of Palestine, were subject to Egypt; and the cities were governed by princes dependent upon Egypt. We gather that the weakness of Egypt and the withdrawal of its troops led to dissensions and revolts of the subject princes; and that the Hittites took the opportunity to encroach upon the Syrian dominions of Egypt. Many of the letters are appeals from the sub-15 ject kings for aid against one another. In more than one instance, each of two mutual enemies claims that he is a loyal subject of Egypt and fighting in its interests, and that the other is a rebel against their common suzerain.

For instance, the Amorite Prince, Aziru, writes to the king of Egypt as follows:-

To my lord, the King, my god, my sun: Aziru, your servant. At the feet of my lord, the King, seven times and seven times I fall . . . In all respects I and my sons are servants of my lord, the King, to all eternity.—(WINCKLER, No. 47; PETRIE, No. 150.)

This is only one of many protestations of Aziru's loyalty; he often appeals to the king of Egypt not to listen to those who accuse him (Aziru) of enmity to Egypt. On the other hand Rib-Addi, Prince of Gebal (Byblös), constantly protests his loyalty to Egypt, and seems to have defended its interests to the utmost of his ability. In Rib-Addi's letters, Aziru appears as the consistent enemy of Egypt and her adherents. Evidently the Intelligence Department of 30 the Egyptian Foreign Office was very imperfectly served, and Pharaoh's ministers had great difficulty in distinguishing friends and foes. The Egyptian vassals received scant aid from Egypt, and town after town fell into the hands of the enemy, amongst whom the Khabiri are conspicuous. We read of the loss of Zidon, Beyroot, and Arvad. Damascus is spoken of as appealing for help, 35 and when last we hear of Tyre, its king, Abimelech, is still holding out for Egypt, but is reduced to great extremities.

Naturally the decay of Egyptian authority and the consequent wars interfered with communication between Egypt and the countries beyond Palestine. In the following extracts Burnaburiash complains to Amenophis IV. of the 40 injuries done in Palestine to Babylonian subjects and envoys.

Inasmuch as they told me, that the road is dangerous, the water supply cut off, and the weather hot, I have not sent you many beautiful presents... With regard to Çalmu, my messenger, whom I sent to you, his caravan has been twice plundered ... Since they have plundered him in your land, which is a land of vassalage, let therefore my brother adjust this strife. When my messenger comes into my brother's presence, let Çalmu also come before my brother, that they may refund him his ransom, and make good his loss.—(WINCKLER, NO. 10; PETRIE, NO. 22.)

Now my merchants, who journeyed with Akhi-tâb (Ahitub), and tarried in Kinâkhi (Canaan) on business . . . they have killed and appropriated their money . . . 50 Kinâkhi is your land, and you are the King. I have been violently dealt with in your land; subdue them. Make good the money they have stolen; and the people, who killed my servants, kill them and avenge their blood.—(WINCKLER, NO. 11; PETRIE, NO. 124.)

(iii) Letters from the south of Palestine (the Philistine cities, and the district which was afterwards Judea). The distinction between (ii) and (iii) is geographical, the letters of the two groups are very similar. Those in (iii) are from Egyptian governors and dependent princes to Pharaoh and his officials. We find the same break-up of the Egyptian power in the South as in the 5 North; and in the South also the dependent princes strive to profit by the weakness of Egypt to aggrandize themselves at each other's expense. Here again mutual enemies all profess to be loyal to Egypt; each correspondent, according to his own account, is a faithful subject and is attacking some one else. only because the other is betraying the interests of Egypt. Such pro- 10 fessions are made even by princes who have allied themselves to the enemies of Egypt. The letters are full of mutual recriminations. But there were clearly two chief parties, one loyal to Egypt; the other professing loyalty, but in reality allied with the enemies of Egypt. The latter party, as in the North, is everywhere successful.

A few names connect the history of the South with that of the North. Zimrida, prince of Lachish, can scarcely be the same as the Zimrida, prince of Zidon, of group (ii); but a certain Lapaya is active against Egypt, not only in the South, but as far north as Megiddo. The chief common element in the situation, North and South, is the Khabiri. They seem ubiquitous, and appear 20 as far north as Gebal, Beyroot, and Zidon (WINCKLER, Nos. 55.60.147); but are perhaps thev most conspicuous and successful in the South. The wide range of their operations makes it difficult to identify them with the Hebrews. Any such identification would seriously add to the objections to the historic character of any portion of Joshua.

An interesting point as regards this group is that Zimrida of Lachish, who is the writer of one of the letters and mentioned another, is also mentioned in a letter found at Lachish 25 (Tel-Hesy; cf. below, note 6 on c. 10) by Mr. BLISS, on May 14th 1892.8 This letter is a tablet in 30 Babylonian cuneiform, in a script similar to that of the Amarna tablets of this third group. 35 It belongs to the period of these tablets, and is a report from one Egyptian official to another. 40 It mentions a message sent to Zimrida by a certain Shipti-Addi (or Dan-Hadad). The original tablet (size:  $2\frac{3}{8} \times 2\frac{1}{8} \times \frac{1}{10}$  in.), which is of dark brown, baked clay, nearly flat on both sides (contrast Ezekiel, p. 98, l. 48), is now in the Imperial Ottoman Museum, Constantinople. The cuneiform text is published in the Transactions 45 of the American Philosophical Society, New Series, vol. xviii, part 3 (Philadelphia, &quot;See above, p. 52, l. 34. The presence, however, of the Khabiri in the North depends on Winckler's interpretation of SA-GAZ = Khabiri, which is doubtful; [SA-GAZ seems to be merely an ideogram for khabbatu 'spoiler' (cf. Jud. 2, 14), that is, raiding nomads. According to Dr. Reisner the Khabiri were Cassites; see Journ. Bibl. Lit., vol. 16 (Boston, 1896), p. 143 and cf. note on Gen. 10, 8, also The Language of Nimrod, the Cassite in the Andover Review (July, 1884) p. 88.—P. H.]

Bliss, A Mound of Many Cities (London, 1894), pp. 52-60 and pp. 184-187. The half-tone reproduction of this tablet, on p. 53, is from a plaster cast in the 5 possession of Professor JASTROW, Philadelphia.

We add two or three extracts from letters of this group. The first shows how the Egyptians arranged for a supply of loyal native officials. The writer, Yabitiri, is a native prince or noble, commanding for Egypt at Gaza and Joppa. He writes thus:—

I am a faithful servant of my lord, the King. I look here and I look there, and there is no light, but I look to my lord, the King, and there is light. And (though) a brick move away from under its coping, I will not remove from under the feet of my lord, the King. Let my lord, the King, ask Yankhamu, his officer. When I was (still) young, he carried me to Egypt, and I served my lord, the King, and 15 stood at my lord, the King's gate. Let my lord, the King, ask his officer, if I do not guard the gate of Gaza and the gate of Joppa.—(WINCKLER, No. 214; PETRIE, No. 101.)

Special interest attaches to a series of letters from Abdi-khiba," prince of Jerusalem. The mention of Urusalim decides the long controversy as to the 20 existence of the name in pre-Davidic times, and affords new data for its etymology (see below, note 2 on c. 10). But, according to Winckler, No. 183 (Petrie, No. 256), the supposed discovery of a description of Jerusalem as the city of the temple of Urash, whose name is Salim® is due to a mistranslation. [Nevertheless, this letter of Abdi-khiba to the King is most interesting as to the 25 early history and importance of the city of Jerusalem. Line 10 of this text can hardly be interpreted as meaning anything else but: they have taken the district of the holy city; and ll. 14.15: the capital of the land, whose name is ferusalem, the city of the temple of Adar, the royal city (so Professor Delitzsch). The reading of the name Adar (Urash, Nin-ib) is uncertain, but we know that 30 this god was the Assyro-Babylonian god of war and the god of the destructive storm-cloud (see JASTROW, Religion of Babylonia and Assyria, Boston, 1898, pp. 214. 217), just as JHVH was, according to early Israelitish conception, a god of war who revealed himself in thunderstorms (cf. Jud. 5,5; I Kings 19, 11; Ps. 18, 7, and Professor Budde's Lectures on The Religion of Israel 35 from the Earliest Times to the Exile, New York, 1899, Lecture I). Adar may, therefore, refer to JHVH, just as, for instance, the Babylonian god Ea is called Kronos in Berossus' version of the Chaldean account of the Deluge. Ancient writers often apply names of their own gods to deities of other nations.-P. H.]

Again, clauses in Abdi-khiba's letters have been translated as describing him 40 as owing his authority neither to father nor mother, but to the Most High God; and this description has been compared to that of Melchizedek, who was priest-king of Jerusalem. But according to WINCKLER, No. 181 (PETRIE, No. 234; cf. ZA 6, 247), the passage reads:—

Neither my father nor my mother, but the strong arm of the King (scil. of Egypt) 45 established me over my father's territory.

Abdi-khiba seems to have been the most zealous supporter of Egypt in Southern Palestine, and his letters enable us to understand how rapidly the cities fell away. The following extracts illustrate these events, and show us that the Khabiri played a most important part in them.

Let the King care for his land, and (pay some heed) to his land; the cities of my lord, the King, belonging to Ili-milki (Elimelech), have fallen away, and the whole territory of the King will be lost. . . If you do not listen to me, all the 5 dependent princes will be lost, and my lord, the King, will have no more dependent princes (cf. Ezra 4, 16). Let the King therefore turn his attention to the princes, and let my lord, the King, send troops. The King has no longer any territory. If troops come in this year, the territory will remain my lord, the King's; but if no troops come, the territory of my lord, the King, is lost.

Abdi-khiba,—knowing that his letter will pass through the hands of the royal scribe or secretary, and apparently not certain that Pharaoh will ever see it,—adds, in a kind of postscript, a special appeal to the scribe:—

To the scribe of my lord, the King:—Abdi-khiba, your servant. Bring plainly (aloud) before my lord, the King, (these) words: "The whole territory of my lord, 15 the King, is going to ruin."—(WINCKLER, No. 179; PETRIE, No. 227; cf. ZA 6, 251.)

In another letter of Abdi-khiba's (cf. above, p. 54, l. 42) we read:—

The Khabiri are occupying the King's cities. There remains not one prince to my lord, the King; every one is ruined.—(WINCKLER, No. 181; PETRIE, No. 234.)

And again in another letter:-

The territory of the King has fallen into the hands of the Khabiri. And now indeed a city of the territory of Jerusalem, called Bit-Ninib, one of the cities of the King, has fallen into the hands of the people of Kiltu (perhaps = Keilah, Josh. 15, 44). . . . . Send troops that I may bring back the King's land to the King. For if there are no troops, the land of the King will fall into the hands of the Khabiri.—(WINCK- 25 LER, No. 183; PETRIE, No. 256; cf. ZA 6, 263.)

Letters like these naturally contain much repetition, a large proportion of their contents consists of the complimentary formulas addressed to the kings of Egypt and Babylon. Yet the letters throw much incidental light on religion and commerce, and above all else give us a clear idea of the political situation. 30 We see that the commercial and political system of the lands between the Euphrates and the Nile was ancient in the days of Abraham, and scarcely altered its essential features till the surrender of Babylon to Cyrus (538 B. c.). Indeed the Ptolemies of Egypt (323-30 B. c.) and the Seleucid kings of Syria (312-64 B. C.) reproduced in a measure the conditions of Egypt and Babylon. 35 Throughout there are the city-states of Palestine and Phænicia, and the great empires SE, NW, and W along the Nile, the Euphrates, and the Tigris. The chief change was the formation of the larger states of Israel and Damascus. Otherwise the Palestine of the Amarna Tablets is, in its political aspects, substantially the Palestine of almost all pre-Roman periods.

There are indications of the combination of two sources in the doublets in vv. 3.4° and 6°.15.21° and 22°. Again, in vv. 6.8 the men are on the roof, and in v. 15 they are let down through the window. The conversation in vv. 17-21 is out of place, if the men have already been let down. The three days in vv. 16.22 to is to be identified with the three days in 1, 11; 3, 2. Mathematical accuracy is not to be looked for in these narratives, the various references simply indicate

- (1) Mentioned in Num. 25, 1 (JE) and 33,49 (P, Abel-Shittim) as the last 2, 1 15 halting place of the Israelites.
- (2) Previously referred to only as a landmark (Deut. 32,49 &c.); Jericho and Gilgal lay in the Plain of the Jordan, opposite Shittim, west of the river. The plain at this point is about 16 miles wide, and the river flows through it at about equal distances from the mountains of Moab and the Hill-country of 20 Judah and Benjamin, which rise somewhat abruptly from the plain as its eastern and western boundaries. Jericho lay close under the western hills, in a large and fertile oasis watered by the stream of the Wâdy el-Qelt and two important 2 springs. As Jericho is called in 2 Chr. 28, 15 the City of Palm-trees, the oasis was probably at this time, as in later days, rich in palm-trees, which, however, have now disappeared (cf. Notes on Judges, p. 49, 1. 47). Pliny, Nat. Hist., 5 5, 14 (70), calls the city: Hiericus palmetis consita, fontibus rigua; cf. Tac., Hist., 5,6. (For palm-trees, cf. the full-page illustration facing p. 98 of Fsalms and note 21 on Ezek. 40.) The position was of military importance—'the Chiavenna of Palestine to any invader from this quarter' (STANLEY) - opposite Jericho the Jordan could be crossed by fords, and through the hills south-

The name has been interpreted (a) Place of Fragrance; from the balsam and other odoriferous products of the oasis (Heb. rûakh 'to smell'); (b) City of the Moon (Heb. yérakh), the etymology suggesting that it was in ancient times a centre of Moon-worship. In the illustration on p. 57 we are west of the Jordan, with our backs to the river, looking across the plain of Jericho to the Hill-country of Judah, seen in the background. The clause interrupts the connection, and is either from a second source (and should possibly connect with the scarlet thread below); or, as it is omitted in the Greek Bible, it may be a late redactional addition.
  - (8) They will die if Rahab is not saved; a form of oath.
- (9) Compare St. Paul's experience at Damascus, Acts 9,25. The custom 15 of building houses on the walls of cities still prevails in the East. The cut on p. 58 gives a modern example of a house on the present city wall of Damascus.

- Note as doublets: (a) The crossing is mentioned at least twice, first  $3, 16^{6}-4, 1^{a}$ , and secondly 4, 10; -(6) The priests pass over twice, 4, 11 and 18.-(c) Two sets of twelve stones, first in the midst of the Jordan, 4,9; secondly at Gilgal, 4,1.8.
  - 3, 12 is quite out of place in its present connection, as are also 4, 1b-3.
    4, 1b-3 (JHVH's instructions to Joshua) must precede 3, 12 (Joshua's orders to the people).

Note also the following connections in E: 3,3 and 14 the people remove from their place; in 3,15 the waters are staid as soon as the feet of the priests dip in them, in 4,18 they return as soon as their feet are lifted out 30 of the water to the dry ground; also the references to the twelve stones at the lodging place.

Neither account is complete, but the E narrative serves as a framework.

- (1) Shittim (cf. 2, 1) to the Jordan, six or seven miles.
- (2) Probably J's account originally used Ark of JHVH, and E's: Ark of the 3 35 Covenant, but editors and scribes have combined and confused the designations. The Greek Bible has carried the combination still further, and has almost everywhere Ark of the Covenant of JHVH.

In the detailed accounts of the movements of the Ark, here and in c. 6, notice the entire absence of any reference to the Tabernacle (Levit., p. 86, l. 26) 40 and its elaborate furniture.

- (3) That is, about a thousand yards (cf. note on Ezek. 40,5). In Num. 4 35,5 (P) this was to be the extent of the pasture-lands to be attached to the Levitical cities, measured outward from the city-walls. The Sabbath-day's journey of the NT (Acts 1,12) and of later Judaism was also two thousand cubits.
- 5 (4) A similar command is given in Ex. 19, 14.15 (1E1), the only details 5 given being that they should wash their clothes, and observe a special chastity. Special care would be taken to ensure the ceremonial cleanness of the people, and it would be accompanied by sacrifices. Cf. 7, 13 and 1 Sam. 16, 5.
  - (5) Compare Deuteronomy, chapter 2, verse 25.
- (6) Heb. él khay, only here in the Hexateuch; living God in Deut. 5, 26 10 (Heb. 23) is a different phrase (elohim khayyim); cf. Hos. 1, 10; Pss. 42, 2; 84, 2.

- (7) In the Greek Bible: wheat-harvest; but as the flood-time is April, it 3, 15 must have been the barley-harvest, which is important in Palestine. In I Chr. 12, 15 the river is flooded in the first month (Nisan = March April). Cf. Sir. 24, 26: The Law makes understanding abound like the fordan in the time of the 5 harvest.
- (8) Readings vary between at Adam and from Adam. Adam (= red?) men- 16 tioned only here, has been identified with ed-Dâmiye, south of the mouth of the Jabbok (see p. 75, l. 7), opposite Qarn Çartabeh, the western point where the valley of the Jordan contracts to a narrow gorge, about 17 miles north of 10 Jericho. The river might have been dammed up in this vicinity by an extensive slide of its high banks (CONDER).
- (9) Zaretan is the same as Zereda (see note on Jud. 7,22), the native place of Jeroboam. It cannot have been in the neighborhood of Beth-shean (cf. p. 84, l. 6), which is more than 40 miles north of Jericho, about 12 miles south of the Sea of Galilee; it must have been near Qarn Çartabeh, although the two names, Zarctan and Çartabeh, are not identical.
- (10) Arabah = Desert, the Valley of the Jordan, and its continuation south of the Dead Sea. Between the Sea of Galilee and the Dead Sea, it is called by the Arabs el-Ghôr, while its southern part, between the Dead Sea and the 20 eastern gulf of the Red Sea, still retains its ancient name el-Arabah (cf. Ezekiel, p. 201, l. 53). Arabah is used elsewhere as a common noun for desert, or with qualifying words to form names for districts similar to the Arabah. The name of the Araba is connected with this word, and means Inhabitants of the Desert.
  - (11) Salt Sea = Dead Sea; cf. notes on Ezek. 16, 49; 47, 8. 12.

- (8) According to Josephus and St. Jerome, about 1½ or 2 miles from Jericho; but probably to be identified with Tel Jeljûl, about half-way between Jericho and the Jordan. Tel Jeljûl is one of twelve small mounds of earth and débris. The name is usually interpreted circuit; it may, however, be a reduplicated form of gal 'stone-heap;' in either case it will refer to a stone circle or cromlech [5] (cf. notes on Jud. 2, 1) similar to those still standing in large numbers in Palestine, especially in the region east of the Jordan. The cut on p. 60 represents a cromlech in the neighborhood of Heshbon, in the land of Moab (see Isaiah, p. 169, l. 14). Gilgal appears in later history as an important sanctuary or high-place (Jud. 3, 19; Hos. 4, 15; 9, 15; Amos 4, 4; 5, 5). There seem to 20 have been other places of the same name (see 2 Kings 2, 1), but throughout Joshua the Camp of Gilgal must refer to this Gilgal. Cf. p. 69, l. 19.

- 25 (1) So Qërê (cf. p. vi, 1. 3), Ancient Versions and some Heb. MSS; ARV 5, 1 with most Heb. MSS, we passed over; cf. v. 6. If we be original, it may be due to an unconscious lapse of R<sup>D</sup> into the language of personal discourse; much of his matter consisting of speeches. If intentional, it marks the writer's identification of himself with the nation in its continuous history, and is not 30 due to his being an eye-witness.
- (2) An account of the institution of circumcision by Joshua at Gilgal 2-9 (ascribed to J<sup>t</sup> on account of its apparently ancient character). In Deuteronomy the use of the figure circumcise your hearts, in speeches ascribed to Moses (Deut. 10, 16; 30,6), implies the pre-Mosaic institution of the rite, and in 35 P the institution is ascribed to Abraham. The presence and importance of this discrepancy were a continual source of trouble to the editors; vv. 4-7 and the other redactional additions are due to successive attempts to harmonize this account with D and P.

According to some critics this narrative is not history, in the strict sense, 40 because no commander would thus disable his army when on a campaign.

It is a Temple story, explaining the origin of a custom (Lev., p. 56, l. 6) observed 45 by the tribe of Benjamin or some of its clans. Among them circumcision was performed at the sanctuary of Gilgal, and the circumcised remained at 50 the sanctuary till they were healed. The Hill of the Foreskins was so called, because the foreskins were buried there. Many similar customs are reported from the South Seas and Africa. Among tribes that circumcise, the operation is usually performed in a special locality, and the circumcised remain apart from 5 the rest of the tribe before and after.

- (3) A stone is the instrument of circumcision in Ex. 4, 25 (J). The ancient 2 Egyptians also performed the operation with stone knives. The employment 5 of a stone knife for the purpose of circumcision represents the survival of a primitive usage (cf. below, p. 63, l. 43) like the primitive ram's horn (Heb. shofár; see below, l. 47) in the service of the modern synagogue (LAGARDE, Mittheil., 4, 192). See also Ezek. p. 192, l. 30.
- (4) Verses 6.7 repeat the explanation in 4.5 in a slightly different form. 4-7 to The Greek Bible re-arranges and supplements these verses, stating that most of the armed men who came out from Egypt were uncircumcised.

(5) Compare the note on verse 1.

(6) Circumcision was regarded in Egypt as a mark of civilization. By this 9 institution at Gilgal the reproach of Egypt, that Israel was barbarous because 15 uncircumcised, was rolled away.

This quasi-etymology is a play upon the resemblance between have I rolled away (Heb. gallóthi) and Gilgal.

- (7) Nisan, cf. 4, 19. In Ex. 12 (P) the preparations for the Passover begin 10 on the 10th; P accordingly fixed the encampment at Gilgal on the 10th; hence 20 the date in 4, 19.
  - (8) Compare Notes on Ezekiel, p. 199, l. 40.
- (9) This section does not connect with what precedes, and ends abruptly 13-15 (6, 2 is not the original continuation of 5, 15). It is apparently a fragment of ancient story, used by the compiler of JE (or of the Hexateuch?) to introduce 25 the narrative of the Fall of Jericho; cf. the appearance of angels to Jacob in Gen. 32, 1.2, which is equally foreign to its context and without sequel.

As the story now stands, no march to Jericho is noticed, and nothing is said about the war with the men of Jericho, 24, 11.

(11) Compare Exodus, chapter 3, verse 5.

Motes on Chapter 6.

Note doublets: v. 5 (blowing of horns); command to shout (vv. 5.10); shouting (v. 20); destruction of city and contents (vv. 21.24); deliverance of Rahab (vv. 21.22 and 24.25). Note how vv. 17.18 interrupt the connection.

In J they compass the city once a day for 7 days (vv. 3.10.11); they shout at the command of Joshua. In E they compass the city 7 times on one day (vv. 4.12.13), rising early (v. 12) in order to have plenty of time; the Ark and the priests are prominent, and the signal for shouting is given by the horn (v. 5). There are also traces of a third story, used by E, according to which 40 the signal, as in Ex. 19, 16, was given by a long (supernatural?) blast of a single horn. Accordingly v. 5 and parts of vv. 7 and 20 are ascribed to E<sup>1</sup>.

RJE and RD have done their best to combine the two accounts into a continuous narrative; and some one with musical enthusiasm, after the manner of Chronicles, has thrown in a perpetual blowing of horns, which would have ren-45 dered the horns useless as a signal, and is excluded by vv. 6 and 16.

(1) As a precaution against surprise by the Israelites.

(2) Cf. Ex. 19, 13. [These horns (Heb. shofarôth) were made of rams' 4 horns and, as a rule, straightened and flattened by heat. The horns of any animal may be shaped either by heat or by boiling in oil. The bore of this instrument is a cylindrical tube of small caliber, which opens into a kind of 6 bell of parabolic form. The sound is produced by the blast of a volume of air, the lips, pressed against the orifice of the horn, acting as a reed. The shaping of the lips is difficult, and only three proper tones are usually obtained, 5 although in some instances higher notes can be sounded. See Cyrus Adler, The Shofar (Report of the U. S. National Museum for 1892, pp. 437-450), Washington, 1894, and cf. Notes on the Psalms, p. 222.—P. H.]

- (3) Literally, will fall under it, that is, in its place or where it stood; cf. 5. I Sam. 14,9; 2 Sam. 2,23; Jud. 7,21; Is. 25,10; Hab. 3,16; so, too, in v. 20.
- (4) So Qerê, Peshita, Targum, Vulgate (cf. p. v, l. 26); Received Text: and 7 they said, that is, the priests.
- (5) RV following the Received Text: And it was so, that when Joshua had 8.9 spoken unto the people, the seven priests bearing the seven trumpets of rams' horns before the Lord passed on, and blew &c. What was part of the directions 15 has been transformed into a narrative. The present version virtually follows the Greek Bible.
  - (6) That is, before the Ark (cf. note 2 on c. 24).
- (7) The word devoted is here analogous to the Polynesian taboo and 17 the Greek anathema, and signifies anything withdrawn from common use, and 20 consecrated to Jhvh (cf. Notes on Ezekiel, p. 104, ll. 21.32; p. 131, l. 8; p. 134, l. 44; p. 195, ll. 2.10). Devoted men and animals were killed, and devoted things either destroyed or given to the sanctuary; cf. Lev. 27, 28; Num. 18, 14, and Notes on Ezekiel, p. 135, l. 17; p. 196, l. 15; see also Levit., p. 68, l. 42 and p. 69, l. 10, and cf. below, p. 65, l. 32.
  - (8) Hebrew consonants T-KH-M-D-W, d = 7, with LXX; RV when ye have 18 devoted it (Heb. consonants T-KH-M-R-W, r = 7, with Received Text. Cf. notes on 9, 4; 15, 22; 19, 10; 21, 35; Judges, p. 70, l. 49; p. 90, l. 22; Ezek., p. 108, l. 17.
- (9) Compare Notes on Ezekiel, p. 151, l. 36. [Some bronze tools, which 19 were found by Professor Petrie at Gurob, Egypt, and which appear to belong 30 to the Eighteenth Dynasty (about 1450 B.C.), contain about 7 per cent. of tin. In some of the earlier Egyptian alloys the quantity of tin is so small that they must be regarded rather as imperfectly purified copper than as bronze. The Assyrian bronze ornaments of the palace-gates at Balawât (see Psalms, p. 206, l. 10) contain about 11 per cent. of tin; and one of the bolts, which 35 fastened the bronze bands to the wooden framework of the doors, contained a little more than 9 per cent., a proportion approaching that usually found in ancient bronze, as well as that of modern gun-metal. The bronze votivetablet from the palace of Sargon (see Isaiah, p. 152) at Khorsabad contains about 10 per cent. of tin. As in Assyria and elsewhere, bronze seems to have 40 been used by the Israelites for some time to the total exclusion of iron (cf. I Sam. 17, 5.6.38; I Kings 4, 13; Ps. 18, 34 &c.; contrast Deut. 19, 5; 27, 5; Josh. 8, 31 and the iron chariots of the Canaanites, Josh. 17, 16); and between the stone age (cf. above, p. 62, l. 6) and the bronze age there must have been a copper age in which copper ores were smelted and used for implements &c. 45 A small votive figure found at Telloh (Ezek., p. 179, l. 43) is nearly pure copper, without any tin whatever. Most of the earliest copper objects, however, contain certain impurities which make the metal somewhat harder than refined copper. Cf. J. H. GLADSTONE, On Copper and Bronze of Ancient Egypt and Assyria in the Proceedings of the Society of Biblical Archaelogy, Mar. 4, 1890.—P. H.]
  - (10) As heathen and therefore unclean; cf. Num. 5, 3; 31, 19 (both P).
  - (11) If any man rebuilt Jericho, his firstborn son should die when the 26 foundation was laid, and his youngest son when the fortifications were completed by setting up the gates. As Jericho is mentioned in Jud. 3, 13 (cf. above, p. 58, l. 4) and in the time of David (about 1000 B. C.), 2 Sam. 10, 5, the curse apparently applied to fortifying the city. This was done by Hiel in 6 the time of Ahab (876-854 B. C.), and the fulfilment of the curse is recorded in 1 Kings 16, 34; the Greek Bible inserts the fulfilment here also. In Neh. 7, 36, among the Jews who returned from the captivity, are mentioned 345 of 5 the Men of Jericho. The rebuilding of a city cut off by divine judgment is generally held to be sacrilege (cf. the curses pronounced on Troy and Carthage). About 596-586 B. C. the town and territory of Kirrha, in Phocis, SW of Delphi, were put under a curse for sacrilege against the sanctuary of Apollo at Delphi. Two centuries and a half afterward the rebuilding of Kirrha was the pretext for 10 the Amphictyonic War (355-346 B. C.) in which Philip of Macedon overthrew the liberties of Greece.

In Job 15, 28 Eliphaz gives as a proof of the reckless audacity of the wicked man, that he dwelt in cities that had been cut off. So Deut. 13, 16 says of an idolatrous city: It shall be a heap for ever, it shall not be built again.

Motes on Chapter 7.

There are indications that two narratives are combined in this chapter, but the amalgamation is too well done to admit of complete analysis. Observe doublets in vv. 3.7 = vv. 8.9.12.15.25, and see notes on these verses.

(1) I Chr. 2, 7; Greek Bible and Josephus: Achar, an adaptation to the 7, I 20 name of the valley Achor; cf. v. 25, and I Kings 18, 17, 18.

BETH-EL.

(2) Ai = 'Heap.' The name occurs as a landmark in connection with 2 Beth-el, Gen. 12,8; 13,3. Variously identified with a certain knoll, et-Tet, and other sites near Beth-el, most probably with  $Haiyan_f$  two miles east of Beth-el, separated from it by a deep ravine. For Beth-el, see Gen. 12,8; Judges 1,22.

Our picture shows the modern village of Bêlin (about four hours north of 7 Jerusalem, on the road to Shechem; see Jud. 21, 19), which occupies the site of the ancient Beth-el (that is, House of God), a sanctuary before the dawn of history, and the most important centre of worship in the Northern Kingdom. 5 The hill on which Bêlin stands rises in a series of terraces, or steps, which may have suggested the ladder reaching to heaven in Jacob's Dream. The ruined tower on the summit is built on ancient foundations. The modern Bêlin consists of a few poor huts, amidst three or four acres of ruins. An enormous cistern (300 x 200 feet) is the chief relic of antiquity. The country is 10 stony, and there are traces of cromlechs (see above, p. 61, l. 14). The hill rises to over 2800 feet; and one of the main roads from Jerusalem to the north has always run, and still runs, along its western slope (cf. above, l. 2). The earlier name of Beth-el was Luz; see 16,2; 18,13; Jud. 1,23.

- (3) Beth-aven = 'House of Vanity;' omitted in the Greek Bible. In Hosea 15 4, 15; 5, 8; 10, 5 it occurs as a name of contempt for Beth-el (House of God); but in Josh. 18, 12; I Sam. 13, 5; 14, 23 it is mentioned in a way that seems to establish its separate existence. Its site is not identified.
- (4) The suggestion that only a part of the people should go up, and the 3-5 account of the flight and smiting, are both given twice over, probably through 20 combination of sources.
  - (5) Shebarim = 'breakings' or 'broken places,' either natural, broken ground 5 with ravines and precipices, or (as RVM) artificial, i. e. quarries. Both quarries and ravines are numerous in the neighborhood. As a proper name the word occurs only here, and the site is not identified.
- The LXX, Pesh., Targ. by a slight alteration of the vowels translate: until they (the Israelites) were broken in pieces.
  - (6) Descent (Heb. Môrád). From Shebarim, which was probably on the edge of the plateau on which Ai stood, down the passage from which the Israelites had come.
- 30 (7) J's equivalent for v. 7 (E); note the new beginning in v. 8; Amorite 8.9 in v. 7, Canaanite in v. 9; and cf. Jacob's fears in Gen. 34, 30 (J).
  - (8) Note the contagious character of the taboo; cf. Ezekiel, p. 195, l. 2.
  - (9) Compare chapter 3, verse 5.

- (11) By lot; cf. the election of Saul to the kingdom, I Sam. 10, and the scene in I Sam. 14. The tribes &c. are to be represented by their chiefs.
- (12) RV, with the Received Text, And he brought near the family of 17.18 Judah, and he took the family of the Zarhites, and he brought near the family of the Zarhites, man by man, and Zabdi was taken, and he brought near his 40 household, man by man &c. &c.

The present version follows the Greek Bible, whose text is supported in some points by the Vulgate, Peshita, and some Heb. MSS.

- (13) LXX and Peshita omit my son.
- (14) Achan's confession showed that JHVH had discovered the offender, 45 and that the defeat of Israel was not due to any failure of JHVH's power or faithfulness, but to the sin of Israel.
  - (15) RVM give praise.
  - (16) Indicating that Achan's words are not given in full; cf. 2 Sam. 17, 15. 20
- (17) Shinar = Babylonia, cf. Gen. 10, 10. LXX many-colored, that is, 21 50 embroidered robe; Vulg. scarlet robe; suggesting the costly materials and elaborate workmanship of Babylonian wares. Cf. Notes on Ezekiel, p. 139, l. 51.
  - (18) The shekel is here a weight of metal (200 shekels =  $8\frac{3}{4}$  lbs., 50 shekels = about  $2\frac{1}{3}$  lbs.); but the data as to the amount of this weight are obscure and inconsistent. The Phœnician shekel was about 224 grains; the Maccabean shekels, as coins, weigh 218 grains, and are about the size of an English half-7 crown. The accompanying illustration represents a Jewish silver shekel, generally supposed to have been coined under Simon Maccabæus (B. C. 142-135), but it must probably time of the great

JEWISH SHEKEL.

The AR between the obverse and reverse means argentum, silver. On the obverse, with the goblet, we read, in Old Hebrew characters, שקל ישראל "שראל "שראל "שראל "אראל" Shekel of Israel; the א above the goblet signifies First Year. On the reverse, with the lily (?), we find: 15 ירושלים קרושה Jerusalem, the holy one. Cf. notes on Lev. 27,3; Jud. 17,4; Ezek. 45, 10–12.

(19) Under it and the absence of any reference to the gold in v. 22 suggest 22 the introduction of the bar of gold from a second source.

(20) So RV following the Received Text. LXX, Elders of Israel.

20 (21) The Greek Bible omits the list of stolen things. The present position 24 of all Israel with him suggests that the intervening words after Achan are an addition. There seem to be traces of two stories: in one, Achan alone was stoned (compare the provision of Deut. 24, 16 that the children should not be punished with the parents), thus in v. 25 they stoned him; v. 26 the heap is 25 erected over him;—in the other story he was treated according to the law of 'devotion' (see the note on 6, 17), Deut. 13, 15-17, and his family and possessions were burnt with him, thus v. 25 they burnt them. The two words for stoning in v. 26 are different, and the former is probably due to a redactor.

(22) Should be him.

2,15 I will give her the Valley of Achor as a door of hope, and Is. 65, 10 the Valley of Achor shall become a resting-place for herds. Probably the Wâdy el-Qelt (cf. above, p. 58, l. 1) which leads from Jericho into the Hill-country.
The plate facing p. 10 represents a wild gorge of this Wâdy. The ruins in the 35 foreground are those of an ancient aqueduct, either one built by Herod to supply Jericho, or a later one which supplied some monastery. The scene of the stoning of Achan would not be this narrow gorge, but the more open part of the valley, where it debouches into the Plain of Jericho (cf. above, p. 58, l. 43).
The meaning of the name Achor (AVM Trouble, RVM Troubling) is uncertain; to it may have been Desolation. The narrator evidently derived the name from the verb 'achar, translated in the preceding verse and in 6, 18: bring calamity upon.

(24) Then JHVH relented = Deuteronomy 13, 17.

Motes on Chapter 8.

Note doublets: arising to go up (vv. 3 and 10; 9 and 13.14); the emptying of the city (vv. 16.17.24).

In J the ambush is 30,000 (v. 3), in E, 5,000 (v. 12).—In J flight is feigned (vv. 5-7); in E it is real (v. 15).—In J the ambush set fire to the city (vv. 8. 20.21); in E Joshua burns it.—In E they flee to the Wilderness (vv. 15.20),

According to some this 'lily' represents the budding rod of Aaron (Num. 17,8).

and rally when Joshua stretches out the javelin (vv. 18.19); in J they turn when they see the smoke of the city (v. 21).

- (1) The fate of the king of Jericho has not been mentioned. 8, 2
- (2) Agrees almost word for word with 11, 14 and Deut. 2, 35; 3, 7; 20, 14.
- (3) From Gilgal to Ai (cf. the map on p. 71) was about 16 or 17 miles.
- (4) In the ravine between Ai and Beth-el.
- (5) G. v. 13, which was probably composed by the Redactor to harmonize 9 with this verse. ARV, with Received Text, have people (one Heb. consonant less).
  - (6) Joshua and the Elders (that is, chiefs), v. 10.
  - (7) The main body, see verse 11.
- (8) So Vulg. and Pesh., lit. its heel; ARV (with Targ.) their liers in wait, the word is apparently used in this sense in Ps. 49, 5, the malice of mine opposers surrounds me (RVM them that would supplant me). It has been suggested that an ambiguous word is used intentionally to indicate that the rear included one or both of the ambushes.
  - (9) As in v. 9 and some MSS here; ARV (with Received Text) went.
- (10) This verse is omitted in the Greek Bible. It is obscure and confused, apparently an attempt by the Redactor to render it possible to interpret the 20 two combined accounts as a single coherent narrative.
  - (11) Heb.  $m\delta r\dot{a}d$  for  $m\delta \dot{e}d$ , of the Received Text, translated in ARV time 14 appointed, RV<sup>M</sup> place appointed; neither makes sense as the narrative stands. If  $m\delta \dot{e}d$  be the correct reading it must refer to something omitted by the Redactor. For  $m\delta r\dot{a}d$  see above, p. 65, 1. 27.
- 25 (12) Usually the name of the Jordan valley (cf. above, p. 60, l. 17); here commonly understood of some desert tract opposite Ai and identical with the Wilderness in vv. 15. 20. 24, and possibly with the Wilderness of Beth-aven in 18, 12; but this view is improbable. Here, again, if the reading be correct, we have an obscurity due to the redaction. The Greek Bible omits the clause 30 to the undied opposite the Arabah.
  - (13) ARV made as if they were beaten, but there is no suggestion in E 15 that they only pretended to flee.
    - (14) Desolate country east of Ai.
- (15) C. Ex. 17, 11, where similarly Moses' hand is uplifted till the battle 26 35 is over.
  - (16) It was apparently rebuilt, possibly on a neighboring site; in Ezra 2, 28 28 we read of the men of Beth-el and Ai.
- (17) Complies with the laws in Deut. 13, 16; 21, 22, 23. It need not, how-29 ever, be referred to R<sup>D</sup>; these passages probably give ancient customs which 40 were incorporated in the Deuteronomic Code.
  - (18) For the gate, see Notes on Ezekiel, p. 178, l. 20.
  - (19) For the altar, see Notes on Ezekiel, p. 106, l. 51.
  - (20) The peace-offerings were sacrificial meals; see Levit., p. 65, l. 9. 31 (21) Not the stones of the altar, but the stones described in Deut. 27, 1-4, 32
- (21) Not the stones of the altar, but the stones described in Deut. 27, 1-4, 145 to which the writer is referring. "The letters were not to be carved in the stone (as is usually the case in ancient inscriptions), but to be inscribed, with some suitable pigment, upon a prepared surface coated with lime or gypsum. This practice was Egyptian. In Egypt it was the custom to put a layer of stucco, or paint, over the stone used in architecture, of whatever quality, even 50 granite; and in the case of sandstone, which was porous, a coat of calcareous composition was laid on before the paint was applied. The black pigment, used in Egypt, consisted of bone-black of ivory; and figures, or characters, inscribed by this method were very permanent (cf. above, p. 49, l. 26). It was a 8 common custom in antiquity to engrave laws upon slabs of stone or metal, and to set them up in some public place. At Carthage the regulations respecting sacrifices were thus engraved. In Greece such slabs were called stelæ; many laws and decrees of Athens, and other Greek states, so inscribed, have been discovered during recent years" (DRIVER on Deut. 27, 2).

(22) In Deut. this law, with no clear indication of its contents, but probably the Deuteronomic Code, Deut. 12-26. The later Jews called Deuteronomy itself the duplicate of the Law.

(23) In Deut. 27, 33 the curses come first and the main emphasis is laid on them.

(24) Shechem be- 35 tween Ebal and Gerizim (see full-page illustrations facing pp. 18. 20 of Judges) is about 20 miles N of Ai; in c. 9 the army is again at Gilgal. Nothing is said about either of these long marches through an unconquered country. The incident is not only a late insertion but without any historical probability.

Motes on Chapter 9.

Note triplet, v. 15; and doublets, vv. 6a and 8a; 16b and 17a; 18 and 26.—
40 Also (i) J has Men of Israel (vv. 6. 14a); E, Joshua (vv. 3. 6. 8. 15); P, Princes of the Congregation (v. 15 &c.).—(ii) J, treaty (vv. 6. 16); E, peace (v. 15).—
(iii) J, Hivites (v. 7); E, Inhabitants of Gibeon (v. 3).—(iv) E, thy servants
(vv. 8. 11).

In vv. 15. 17-21 the ignoring of Joshua shows that this section does not 45 belong to the main body of P in Joshua, in which Joshua is always introduced, as subordinate, however, to Eleazar (14, 1; 19, 51; 21, 1); cf. 22, 13, where Joshua is similarly ignored.

According to the Priestly Code the servants of the altar were the Levites (cf. notes on Ezek. 44,11.14); accordingly P* (cf. above, p. 46, l. 7) changes 50 the Gibeonites into wood-cutters and water-carriers.

(1) The present cl-Jib on a little isolated hill about 18 miles W of Gilgal, 9, 3 about 7 miles SW of Ai, and about 5 miles SE of Upper Beth-horon (cf. notes Io and 12 on c. 10). The remains of an old fortress and a few scattered hovels 9 stand on the top of the hill whose sides are terraced for vineyards and covered with olives, figs, and pomegranates (see the plate facing p. 14).

- (2) So following the Ancient Versions; ARV, following the Received Text, 4 5 made as if they had been ambassadors. The reading of the Versions has d = 3 where the Received Text has r = 3 (cf. note on 6, 18); there is no other difference. The word in the Received Text is found only here, and if read, its meaning would be very doubtful.
- (3) Literally bound up (so ARV), that is, the edges of a rent were tied to around with string. Wine-skins (cf. the illustration on p. 92) are mended in the East by being bound up in this way, or patched, or even by covering the holes with round, flat pieces of wood.
- (4) Heb. niqqudim; Vulg., Targ., Aquila crumbled; ARV, with LXX, 5 mouldy. Niqqudim were part of the present Jeroboam's wife took to the prophet 15 Abijah, with barley loaves and honey (1 Kings 14,3); the word is there translated cracknels in ARV. Things dry and broken might apply to stale bread and equally to hard biscuits or crackers. [Contrast the fresh fig produced by Cato in the Senate to illustrate the proximity of Carthage (Pliny 15,20).—P. H.]
- (5) The Gilgal of the first encampment; suggestions that this is a second 6 20 Gilgal are quite unnecessary, and arise simply from a desire to interpret the narrative, so as to connect R<sup>D</sup>'s addition 8, 30-35 with the earlier narratives between which it has been placed. Cf. above, p. 61, l. 21.
  - (6) No king is mentioned; apparently Gibeon was under family or patri- II archal government.
  - 5 (7) Third day (omitted in the Greek Bible), a distance of about 18 miles 17 as the crow flies (cf. v. 3), but longer by rough, hilly roads. In 10,9 Joshua went up from Gilgal to Gibeon in a single night.
- (8) Cf. 18, 25-28; Chephirah (that is, Village) = Kefire about five miles SW of Gibeon; Beeroth (that is, Cisterns; cf. the name Beyroot, see above, 30 p. 53, l. 21) perhaps = el-Bîre, about four miles NE of Gibeon; Kirjath-jearim (that is, City of Woods), probably Qaryet el-Ineb, about two miles south of Chephirah, cf. 15, 9 and Notes on Judges, p. 91, note 22.
- (9) RV: And the princes said unto them, Let them live: so they became 21 hewers of wood and drawers of water unto all the congregation; as the princes 35 had spoken unto them.
  - (10) Saul made an unsuccessful attempt to extirpate the Gibeonites (2 Sam. 26 21, 1); later on, they seem to have been merged in Israel: in Neh. 7, 25 the Gibeonites are included in the list of those who returned from the Captivity without being in any way distinguished from the rest of the Jews.
    - (11) Compare Deuteronomy 12, 5 and passim.

Motes on Chapter 10.

In the E portions, note Amoriles, and, as in E of c. 9, inhabitants of Gibeon (v. 1); made peace (vv. 1.4).—As v. 15 is out of place before v. 21, vv. 12-15 were apparently a general note appended to the conclusion of the narrative at 45 v. 27; parts of vv. 12-14 are from an ancient source containing material similar in character to J<sup>1</sup> (or vv. 16-27 is mainly J). V. 15 (as D in v. 43) brings Israel back to Gilgal after each campaign.—The section vv. 28-39 (D) rests on a basis of JE, and bears the traces of more than one redaction. Note the frequent redundancies of expression and the broken constructions (vv. 28.35.37 &c.).

(1) LXX throughout Adoni-bezek, as in Jud. 1,5-7; the author of Judges 10, 1 seems to have understood that Adoni-zedec was king of Bezek, Jud. 1,5.

Adoni-zedec, according to traditional pronunciation, = Lord of Righteousness, 10 originally: Zydyc (a Canaanite deity) is my Lord. Cf. Melchizedek, Gen. 14, 18. The proposal to substitute Adoni-zedec for an obscure name in the Amarna Tablets (see above, p. 47, l. 25; p. 54, note *) is a mere conjecture.

- 5 (2) Jerusalem = Salem of Melchizedek; mostly in early books Jebus, City of the Jebusiles, Jebusi. [Jerusalem = Irusalim, a byform of the oldest form, Urusalim, found in the Amarna Tablets (cf. above, p. 54, l. 19). The meaning of the name seems to be City of Safety. Uru = city in Sumerian (that is, the idiom of the non-Semitic aborigines of Babylonia); cf. Ur of the Chaldees, 10 Gen. 11, 28.31; 15,7; Neh. 9,7. The later form of the old Sumerian uru, ur 'city' is eri, er, ir, which has passed into Hebrew as 'ir, the common Hebrew word for city. The traditional rendering of Jerusalem, City of Peace, is inaccurate. Cf. Critical Notes on the Heb. text of Isaiah, p. 100.—P. H.]
- (3) Probably cities with smaller towns dependent on them; cf. above, p. 54, 2 15 l. 28.
- (4) These five cities are spread over a large area of Southern Palestine. 3 Hebron is about 19 miles south of Jerusalem. The plate facing p. 16 shows the modern town el-Khalil, which is east of the site of the ancient Israelite city of Hebron. The modern Arabic name is an abbreviation of Khalil Allah, 'The 20 Friend of God,' that is, Abraham (Is. 41,8; 2 Chr. 20,7; Jas. 2,23). The large building to the right, marked by the tall minarets at each end, is the Great Mosque, Arab. Harám, which encloses the traditional Cave of Machpelah and the graves of Abraham and Sarah, Isaac and Rebekah, and Jacob and Leah. The minarets and the outer wall (which is about 200 feet long by 115 25 feet square, and upward of 50 feet high, without a single window or opening of any kind except the doorways to the north) are Saracenic, but the lofty inner wall is at any rate older than the Christian era, and has been ascribed even to Solomon. Hebron is no doubt one of the oldest existing cities in the world (cf. Num. 13, 22 and note on Ps. 78, 12). See Gen. 23, 20 and the picture (facing 30 p. 16 of Isaiah) of the 'Oak of Abraham,' the famous holm-oak (about a mile and a half west of Hebron) which is 22 feet in circumference.
  - (5) Jarmuth = Yarmûk, about 18 miles SE of Jerusalem, NW of Bêt-Nettîf.
- (6) The site and important remains of Lachish have been recently recovered at Tel-el-Hesy (cf. note on Is. 37, 8 and see above, p. 53, l. 26b), about two miles 35 south of Eglon, while the name is preserved at Unun-láqis, two miles west of Eglon. The proposed identification of this Japhia, King of Lachish, with a king of Gezer (cf. v. 33) of similar name (Iapakhi) mentioned in the Amarna Tablets is precarious.
  - (7) Eglon (the modern 'Ajlân) is about 20 miles west of Hebron.
- (8) Not certainly identified, coupled with Socoh in 15, 35; I Sam. 17, I, and 10 with Lachish in 2 Chr. 11, 9; Neh. 11, 30; Jer. 34, 7. Possibly Zakaryá close to Jarmuth, or Bir-ez-zágh north of Socoh (?).
  - (9) Possibly el-Mughâr (that is, 'The Cave'), about 17 miles SW of Bethhoron, close to Ekron. There are caves at el-Mughâr.
- 45 (10) Attacking from the SE, Israel drove the Canaanites NW, along the 11 road past the two Beth-horons to the coast; then apparently the fugitives turned southward, in order later on to make for the Hill-country on the east and regain their own cities. Upper Beth-horon (Bêt 'Ûr), 2000 feet above sea level, is five miles NW of Gibeon; Lower Beth-horon (500 feet lower) is about two 50 miles further on; from the latter there is a steep and rough descent to the Mediterranean Plain. Beth-horon was the scene of a great victory of Judas Maccabæus over the Syrians (B. C. 166) and of another of the insurgent Jews over Cestius Gallus in A. D. 66. Our picture shows the decayed modern village of Bêt 'Ûr el-Fôqa, which stands on the site of the ancient Upper Beth-horon.

It is perched on the crest and steep side of the hill, on hard grey limestone, 10 and beyond it we see something of a straggling olive grove. In the distance, on the left, are the coast line and the waters of the Mediterranean; and between Beth-horon and the Sea, the Shephelah (see Judges, p. 49, l. 12) and dom (394 A.D.) is said to have been decided by the Bora or north-east wind, so which blew in the faces of the enemy.

(12) Joshua was on the Beth-horon ridge, with Gibeon on the SE and the 12 Valley of Ajalon to the SW, running from Beth-horon toward the sea. It was something before noon (cf. v. 13), the sun was still in the East, the setting 10 moon in the West. The subjoined picture shows part of the valley of Ajalon, with the modern village which preserves the ancient name in the form Yalo. It stands on a hill at the southern end of the valley, the end furthest from 5 Beth-horon. The valley is a broad stretch of corn-land. The name Ajalon occurs in the Amarna Tablets in the forms Ajalûna and Ialûna.

(13) The quotation is poetic and figurative, as in the Song of Deborah, Jud. 13 5, 20, the stars fought against Sisera; it seems, however, to have been misunderstood and taken literally by subsequent editors. It means simply: May 10 God grant us victory before the sun sets. Similarly Agamemnon prays to Zeus that the sun may not set before Priam's dwelling is overthrown (11. 2, 413 ff.). At the bidding of Athene, the sunset was delayed for the sake of Ulysses (Od. 23, 241 ff.) and, on another occasion, hastened at the command of Hera, in order to save the Greeks (11. 18, 239 ff.). Of course, if there were an adequate

- 15 motive for a miracle here, or any appreciable evidence that a miracle took place, scientific objections would be irrelevant because, from the very idea of a miracle, its physical antecedents and mechanism are unintelligible and cannot be discussed. But there is no reason to suppose that the narrative originally stated that a miracle happened.
- 20 (14) Mentioned 2 Sam. 1, 18 as containing David's Lament over Saul and Jonathan; and, according to a probable interpretation of a reading in the Greek Bible, in 1 Kings 8, 53, as containing a poetic utterance of Solomon. Hence a collection of poems, and possibly also narratives, made soon after the time of Solomon (about 930 p. c.). Jashar (upright), either (as Jeshurun) a poetic title 25 of Israel (cf. note on Is. 44, 2), or a collective term = heroes, cf. the Nine Worthics (Hercules, Hector, &c.).
  - (15) RV the remnant which remained of them.

(16) Cf. Ex. 11,7; Is. 10,14. The Received Text would mean: None 21 moved his tongue against the Israelites, against any man of them.

- (17) Cf. Ps. 110, 1. In Assyrian wall-sculptures we often see kings putting 10,24 their feet on the necks of prostrate enemies. In the famous monument of Darius Hystaspes (B. C. 521-486), on the rock of Behistun (between Baghdâd and Hamadân), the king places his foot on the stomach of a prostrate rebel.
  - (18) Cf. the treatment of the King of Ai in 8, 29.

- (21) Killed already in vv. 23. 26. Hebron and Debir are again taken by 37 Joshua, 11, 21; and by Caleb and Othniel, 15, 13-17 (cf. 14, 12-14); Jud. 1, 10-13. The king of Debir is included in the list of conquered kings in 12, 15 but not the king of Hebron.
  - (22) Also Kirjath-sepher, 15, 15; and Kirjath-sannah, 15, 49; not certainly 38 identified, possibly ed-Dâhartye about 12 miles SW of Hebron, on the southern edge of the Hill-country (cf. notes on Jud. 1, 11).

Motes on Chapter 11.

- Verses 1-15, R<sup>D</sup> on a basis of E, there being probably other fragments of E besides those indicated; vv. 21.22 a Deuteronomic addition to R<sup>D</sup>'s edition of Joshua.
  - (1) This narrative is probably a variant of the history in Jud. 4.5; cf. II, I Notes on Judges, p. 60, ll. 38.43; p. 61, ll. 6.16.31 ff.
  - (2) The identification of this Jabin with the king of Hazor (Abdi-tirshi?) in the Amarna Tablets is more than doubtful.
  - (3) These sites have not been identified with any certainty. Hazor is given to Naphtali (19, 36) and is said by Josephus to be near Lake Hûle (cf. note 7), in the western neighborhood of which it may be placed (see Judges, p. 61, l. 43). II Madon (LXX Maron; cf. p. 63, l. 27) may be Madin close to the Horns of Hattin, a little W of the Sea of Galilee (see p. 75, l. 11).—Shimron, given to Zebulun in 19, 15, has been identified with Semiriye on the sea-coast, near Accho, 5 and with Seminiye near Nazareth.—Achshaph, given to Asher 19, 25, has been identified with Iksâf, a little south of the Leontes (el-Lilâny; see below, note 6).—As the five cities of cc. 9.10 were spread over a wide area in the South, so these four represent a wide area in the North, including the territory afterward occupied by Asher, Naphtali, and Zebulun.

- (4) That is, the Carmel range E and N of Dor, a Phœnician port about 2 fifteen miles south of Carmel.
  - (5) Elsewhere (Gen. 34, 2; Josh. 9, 7) only in Central Palestine.
- (6) Not identified; the land or valley (v. 8) is apparently the valley of the Litâny (el-Lîtânî, the upper course of the Nahr el-Qâsimîye, N of Tyre) 15 between the Lebanon and the Hermon (see the illustration facing p. 146 of Psalms).
- (7) Only here and v. 7; commonly assumed and marked in maps as Lake 5 Hûle, which makes a third in the chain of lakes with the Dead Sea and the Sea of Galilee; but this assumption is not supported by any conclusive evi-20 dence. Mêrôn, about four miles W of Çâfed (cf. p. 75, l. 15), has no waters to speak of and no level ground for chariots. Josephus locates the battle near Kadesh not far from Lake Hûle (cf. p. 75, l. 41), but substitutes a city Berotha for the Waters of Merom. Lake Hûle is about four miles long and four broad; a reedy marsh stretches for more than six miles further north. The lake and 25 marsh lie in a valley about sixteen miles long by six broad. The snow-capped summits, in the background of our picture facing p. 18, belong to the Lebanon.
- (8) Cf. Gen. 49, 13; probably the main town as distinguished from some 8 secondary or dependent Lesser Zidon. Sennacherib (B. C. 705-681), in the cuneiform account of his campaign against Hezekiah of Judah (701 B. C.), men-30 tions both Çîdûnu rabû and Çîdûnu çikhru (Great and Lesser Zidon). Cf. the full-page illustration facing p. 48 of Ezekiel.
- · (9) That is, Burnings of the Waters, hot springs or glass manufactories, which were common among the Phænicians; either Sarepta between Tyre and Sidon, or 'Ain-Mesherfe at the southern end of the rocks of the so-called 35 Ladder of Tyre (Scala Tyriorum, Joseph., War, ii, 10, 2; Arab. Rás en-Nágúra).
- (10) Cf. Jer. 30, 18 the city shall be built upon its own mound; the most 13 important cities were built on natural or artificial elevations. Assyrian buildings were regularly placed upon artificial mounds; cf. note on Ezek. 41, 5. In modern Palestine tel is the name for the mounds that mark the site, and often 40 contain the ruins, of ancient cities.
  - (11) RV<sup>M</sup> bare mountain, some hitherto unidentified mountain in the 17 extreme South of Palestine; also 12,7.
- (12) Cf. 12,7; 13,5, often identified with Bániás (Paneas or Cæsarea Philippi, the northernmost point Jesus visited, Matth. 16,13; Mark 8,27; cf. 45 Notes on Ezekiel, p. 201, l. 39); but some site nearer Lebanon would seem more suitable.
  - (13) Compare chapter 10, verse 37.
- (14) ARV Sons of Anak, giving the erroneous impression that Anak was 21 the name of the father of these giants. The phrase signifies men of great 50 stature (lit. of long neck); cf. Num. 13, 22 and Notes on Judges, p. 49, l. 19; p. 50, l. 9.
  - (15) G. 15, 50; there are ruins so named ('Anâb) about 9 miles SW of Hebron.
    - (16) For Gaza see above, note 25 on chapter 10.

- (17) Cf. 13, 3; site not certainly known, often identified with Tel-eq-Çâfiye 11 about 10 miles SE of Ashdod. This site would fairly agree with the various notices of Gath.
  - (18) Cf. 13.3 &c., = Esdûd near the coast, between Ekron and Gaza.

Motes on Chapter 12.

- (1) See Deuteronomy, chapter 3, verses 8-13.
- 12,1-6 (2) For the Arnon and the Jabbok, see notes on Jud. 11, 13 and the illustrations ibid., p. 78.
- (3) For the Arabah see above, p. 60, l. 17. The Sea of the Arabah is the 10 Dead Sea; cf. Notes on Ezekiel, pp. 128 and 202.
- (4) That is, the Sea of Galilee (the Lake of Gennesareth), the chief scene 3 of our Lord's ministry. This lake is 655 feet below the level of the Mediterranean, and owing to this great depth the climate is almost tropical. about 12½ miles long and 6¾ wide. In our picture, facing p. 20, we look 15 across from the heights of Çâfed (cf. p. 74, l. 20) to the eastern cliffs, nearly 2000 feet high, which are the outworks, so to speak, of the great table-land of Bashan. The name Chinnéreth (plur. Chinnerôth) means harp (see Psalms, p. 222, l. 23). For the use of the plural form see Ezekiel, p. 157, l. 21.

- (5) See chapter 11, verses 16-18,
- (6) In c. 10, where the captures of Lachish, Eglon, Jarmuth, and Hebron are 10 expressly mentioned, that of Jerusalem is not. In Jud. 1,8 it is taken by the Judahites, and in Josh. 18, 28 it is counted among the cities of Benjamin; but in Josh. 15,63 and Jud. 1,21 we are told that it was not taken. It was finally taken by David, 2 Sam. 5, 6-8.
- (7) Mentioned only here; some hitherto unidentified site in Southern 13 Palestine.
  - (8) Num. 14, 45.
- (9) Num. 21, 1. (10) Gen. 38, 1.
- (11) Tappuah (16, 8 = En-tappuah 17, 7) and Hepher (1 Kings 4, 10) are 17 unknown sites in Central Palestine.
- (12) Not identified, apparently toward the north, possibly = Aphek of Asher 18 (19, 30; Jud. 1, 31), which was not taken.
  - (13) RV one; the king of Lasharon. No such city is known. Some read the king of Sharon, either the district of Sharon or a city of that name, e.g. (CONDER) the present ruin Sârônâ, a little SW of the Sea of Galilee.
    - (14) Shimron-meron = Shimron; cf. II, I.
  - (15) Cf. 17, 11; 21, 25; = Ta'annak, on the southern edge of the Plain of 21Esdraelon (or Jezreel); cf. Notes on Judges, p. 50, l. 20; p. 69, l. 36.
- (16) Cf. 17, 11 = Lejjûn to the NW of Taanach (see Notes on Judges, p. 50, 1. 22); Mujedda' near Beth-shean (p. 84, 1. 6) has been proposed, but this
- 40 identification is not probable (cf. G. A. SMITH, Hist. Geography, p. 387). (17) Cf. 19, 37, Kedesh-Naphtali = Qedes (Kadesh), NW of Lake Hûle (cf. 22) p. 74, l. 22).
  - (18) Cf. 19, 11; 21, 34; = Tel-Qaimûn at NW end of Esdraelon (see l. 37).
  - (19) Nations (RV Goiim), that is, the Gentiles.
  - (20) So with LXX, RV (cf. Is. 9, 1); Received Text: Gilgal.
  - (21) Variously identified with Tallaza, 6 miles E of Samaria, and with 24 Tayâçîr, NE of Thebez (Jud. 9, 50); contrast p. 76, No. 30.
- (22) The Received Text has thirty-one; the alteration of the words the king of Lasharon in v. 18, however, reduces the total to 30. The Greek Bible further 50 omits Makkedah (cf. note on 10, 10) and reads the total as 29.

Beneral Beographical Mote

TO CHAPTERS 13-24.

For convenience of reference the names of cities in the second part of the Book of Joshua are given in an alphabetical list. Where a site has been identified, with at least strong probability, the modern name of the site is given (in Halics), with some indication of its position; otherwise the name is given without comment. The distances and directions are intended to help the reader to find the places upon a map, and are often only roughly approximate.

The majority of these names are not mentioned as the scenes of any 10 events, but given only in the various gazetteer portions of the OT; many of them occur only in Joshua and at times in only a single passage.

Identification depends on: (i) Similarity of ancient and modern names.—
(ii) Suitability of position, as regards the tribe or district; or as being in the neighborhood of cities mentioned in connection.—(iii) Statements of Josephus, 15 Talmud, St. Jerome, and other ancient authorities.

Nearly all of these sites have been the subject of many plausible conjectures, and yet there are comparatively few identifications that are absolutely certain. It is only with hesitation that identifications based on existing names can be carried back beyond the Captivity (597-537 B.c.). There may be continuity of name between an ancient and a modern city, and yet no continuity of site: families returning from Babylon might give to a new settlement the name of their old home.

Note that the information given is full and detailed with regard to Judah and Benjamin, the main settlement of the restored community. Galilee, the 25 other settlement of the Jews of the Restoration, is described with less completeness and clearness, under Zebulun, Issachar, Asher, and Naphtali. -The account of Ephraim and Western Manasseh, i. e. the Samaritan territory, is extremely meagre and confused.

It is impossible to draw a map of the territories of the tribes which will include the whole OT; their borders were no more permanently fixed than 30 those of the Saxon Heptarchy. Nor can any one map be drawn to represent the tribal divisions as given in Joshua; the geographical sections of the Book combine independent sources, which often contradict each other.

There is, however, complete agreement as to the general relative positions of the tribal territories. See map of the Seats of the Twelve Tribes prefixed 35 to Judges.

Motes on Chapter 13.

13, 29 - 31 is a composition or medley of phrases from various sources; since vv. 25 and 31 are inconsistent, this section was either composed or expanded by one of the later Priestly writers; cf. notes on vv. 21, 22, 29-31. The pas-40 sages colored dark red in cc. 13-24 are assigned to Jt, because they are closely parallel to Jud. 1.

For the contents of c. 13, compare 1 Chron. 5.

- (1) Deut. 3, 14, usually in the NE of Bashan; possibly the close connection 13, 2 here with the Philistines may point to another Southern tribe. 45
  - (2) That is, the Brook of Egypt; cf. 15,4; Num. 34,5.—(3) Cf. Deut. 2,23. 3
    - (4) RV and Mearah.

(5) That is, Men of Gebal. 4

- (6) The present connection of Reuben and Gad with Western Manasseh is 13,7.8 due to some mistake or corruption of the text. The Greek Bible inserts after v. 7: From the Jordan as far as the Great Sea, toward the sun-setting shall thou give it; the Great Sea shall be the border, and proceeds: to the (some MSS 5 insert two) tribes and to the half-tribe of Manasseh, to Reuben and Gad, gave Moses &c.
  - (7) Verses 9-12, like 12, 1-5, follow Deut. 3, 8-13.

- (11) RV Debir, possibly = Lo-debar, 2 Sam. 9, 4, not identified.
- (12) The recognition of Eastern Manasseh as a formal half-tribe was very 29 late; see note on 17, 14-18. Cf. Deut. 3, 13. 14.
  - (13) All the cities of Gilead are given to Gad in v. 25; cf. Deut. 3, 15.
- (14) Explanatory correction of preceding clause, according to 1 Chr. 7, 14  $(RV^M)$ . Machir was the only son of Manasseh, and half of his descendants were wanted on the West of the Jordan.

Motes on Chapter 15.

30 V. 13 is due to the Redactor who inserted 14-19. Verses 14-19 and 63 (cf. notes) belong to the document in Jud. 1, viz. to J. Verses 45-47 use formulas not found elsewhere in P, and indicate an undigested fragment of a source either used by P or inserted later. They are often referred to JE.

For c. 15 cf. 1 Chr. 4, 1-23; Neh. 11, 25-30.

(1) For the southern bay of the Dead Sea cf. Notes on Ezekiel, p. 128.— 15, 2.4 The Brook of Egypt is generally identified with the Wâdy el-'Arish, that is, the stream which empties into the Mediterranean at el-'Arish (the ancient Rhinocolura) between Gaza and Port Said; but it has been recently suggested that it is probably the stream which empties into the Mediterranean near Raphia (the modern Tel-Rifah), further north, about 6¼ hours S of Gaza, near the present frontier of Egypt. In several passages of OT the Heb. word for Egypt is held by some to refer not to the valley of the Nile but to the northernmost province of Western Arabia (cf. Critical Notes on the Heb. text of Isaiah, p. 98, l. 8). For this Brook of Egypt, or rather Stream of Mucr. cf. Num. 34,5; 1 Kings 8,65; 2 Kings 24,7; Is. 27, 12; see also Gen. 15, 18.

- (2) There is a Debir near Adummim; but the Greek Bible reads to the 15,7 fourth part of the valley. Some propose to treat Debir not as a proper name, but to translate backward, that is, westward.
  - (3) Not the site of the camp; contrast note on 9,6.
- (4) Possibly Wády el-Qelt (cf. above, p. 66, l. 33), or the stream immediately to the south of it.
- (5) Lit. went out to, used also when the border came to an end at the sea &c. G. Notes on Ezekiel, p. 204, l. 49.
- (6) It has been usual to locate the Waters of Nephtoah and Kirjath-jearim 9 10 at Lift\(\hat{a}\) and Qaryet-el-Ine\(\hat{Ineb}\) (see Judges, p. 91, l. 3), and to draw the border-line NW. The Palestine Exploration map places them at 'Ain-'At\(\hat{a}\) and 'Erma (S of Kesl\(\hat{a}\) = Chesalon, v. 10) respectively, and draws the border-line first SW and then NW.
- (7) Not the mountains of Edom between the Dead Sea and the Gulf of 10 15 Akabah (Ezekiel, p. 169, l. 24), but a mountain in Judah.
  - (8) In 19,41: Ir-shemesh, and given to Dan.—Timnah (cf. Jud. 14,1) is about an hour S of Beth-shemesh, NW of Bêt-Nettif, while the Timnah in v. 57 (cf. Gen. 38, 12) is SE of Bêt-Nettif.
- (9) Verses 14-19 = Jud. 1, 10-15, almost word for word; cf. Notes on 14 20 Judges, p. 49, ll. 17-35. The gloss younger to Caleb's brother (Jud. 1, 13) has not been added in Joshua (see Judges, p. 49, l. 30). For give in give me a present (v. 19) the parallel passage in Judges reads a different synonym (Heb. hábah instead of těnáh), and for the singular forms illith and tahtith in Jud.
  1,15 Joshua has the plurals illioth and tahtioth. The Received Text, in both
- 25 Joshua and Judges, reads the plural, Gulloth (ARV springs), instead of the singular, Gullath, as adopted in the present translation; the Greek Bible in Josh. 15, 19 read the singular. The meaning of Gullath illith and Gullath tahtith (ARV upper and nether springs) may have been Upper and Lower Basin (see Judges, p. 49, l. 34).
- (10) This name is commonly explained to mean City of the Book or 15 Archive-Town, and is supposed to have been the seat of a famous library or the seat of the oldest university; but this explanation is by no means certain.
  - (11) That is, Kenezite (cf. p. 81, l. 24). (12) See note on 10, 40. 17.21
  - (13) RV Adadah; see above, p. 63, l. 25.
- (14) That is, New Hazor, but the word for new is Aramaic; the Greek 25 Bible apparently had a different reading, and the text is probably corrupt.
  - (15) One name as RV, not two as AV (LXX, cities of Hezron).
- (16) Heb. בנוחיה BNWTYH, lit. her daughters; cf. v. 45 &c.; Jud. 1,27; 28 11,26; Num. 21,25.32; 32,42; Jer. 49,2; Ezek. 16,46; Received Text: 40 בויותיה BZYWTYH, RV Biziothiah.
  - (17) Cf. 19, 4 and 1 Chr. 4, 30; RV Chesil.
  - (18) Cf. 19,7 and Neh. 11, 29; RV Ain and Rimmon; cf. above, note 15. 32 En-rimmon is represented by the ruins of Umm-er-Ramâmîn, 12 miles NE of Beer-sheba, SW of 'Anâb.
- 45 (19) At least 36 cities have been enumerated. P, or a later editor, has added to the list of cities given in his source without correcting the statement as to the total number. Verses 26-28 seem to be interpolated from Neh. 11, 26. 27; if omitted, the number 29 in v. 32 will be correct.
- (20) Heb. shepheláh, between the Hill-country and the sea, cf. Deut. 1, 7 33 50 and Notes on Judges, p. 49, 1. 11.
  - (21) Given to Dan in 19, 41; cf. Judges, p. 82, l. 24. In the Amarna Tablets the name occurs in the form Carkha; it is mentioned in connection with Aialūna = Aijalon; see above, p. 72, l. 6, and cf. 2 Chron. 11, 10.
    - (22) Fifteen names are mentioned. Probably one of the three, Adithaim, 36

Gederothaim, Gederah, is due to an accidental repetition. The Greek Bible 15 omits Adithaim.

(23) Readings vary between Lahman and Lahmas.

40

- (24) Both here and in 1 Sam. 30, 30 the readings vary between Ether and 42 5 Ethek.
  - (25) RV the great sea and the border thereof.

- (26) The names from Tekoa to Manahath are given on the authority of the 59 Greek Bible.
- (27) V. 63 = Jud. 1, 21, except that Benjamiles is substituted in Judges for 63 10 Judahites in our passage. Judahites is no doubt the original reading. Compare 17, 14. For could not dispossess the parallel passage in Judges reads did not dispossess, but could not was evidently the original reading, which seems to have been changed into did not by an editor or scribe, on dogmatic grounds; cf. Jud. 1, 19.

Motes on Chapter 16.

In vv. 1-3 note the absence of P formulas and treatment of Joseph as a single tribe. V. 4 possibly from RP to connect vv. 1-3 with vv. 5-8. V. 9 is added from JE to the complete P statement.

- (1) Only the southern border is given.—For the Waters of Jericho see 16, I 20 above, p. 58, note  $^{7}$ .
  - (2) Not known; cf. 1 Chr. 7, 32.33.

- (3) The description is confused and imperfect, through combination of inde-5 pendent sources, and omission, or loss, of part of the text. Apparently in vv. 6 and 7 the border is traced first from Michmethah to the SE, and then from 25 the same point to the SW.
  - (4) Text is apparently corrupt.

- 6

- (5) Probably Wâdy Qâna, a tributary of the Nahr-el-'Aujâ which falls into 8 the sea north of Joppa. Or the name may mean Brook of Reeds (Heb. nákhal qanêh, like the Arabic Nahr el-Qâçab, which may be the Nahr el-Mefjir (or 30 Wâdy el-Khudêrah), S of Cæsarea. Some scholars have thought of the Nahr el-Fâlik, N of Arsûf (Apollonia), between Cæsarea and Joppa, where the Crusaders under Richard Coeur-de-Lion defeated Saladin on Sept. 7th 11g1. The Syrian papyrus grows in the bed of the Nahr el-Fâlik; but this stream seems to be an artificial canal.
  - (6) Compare chapter 17, verse 14.

Motes on Chapter 17.

In the section 17, 1-13 R<sup>p</sup> has not merely inserted a few small fragments of JE in P, but has drawn largely from older sources, and made harmonizing additions of his own (printed in Italics), with very limited success. For vv. 40 14-18 see below, notes 10 ff.

- (1) V. 2 gives the clans of Manasseh without any attempt at personal 17, 2 genealogy; in v. 3 Hepher is the great-grandson of Manasseh; cf. 13, 31 and Num. 26, 28-32.
- (2) Verses 3.4 is the carrying out of Num. 27, 1-11 (P); cf. Num. 3 45 26, 33; 36.
  - (3) Apparently a portion for each of five of the families in v. 2, and also 5 for each of the five daughters of Hepher, the eponym of the sixth family.
    - (4) A misplaced fragment connecting with 16, 9.

- (6) Compare height or heights of Dor, II, 2; I2, 23. The words from the II three heights to did not conquer have been brought forward from II<sup>b</sup>. I2<sup>a</sup>. After did not conquer the Received Text has those cities,—a subsequent inserstion which became necessary after the preceding words had been misplaced.
- (7) See above, p. 60, l. 14; cf. also v. 18; I Kings 4, 12, and I Chr. 7, 29. The long conspicuous hill in the picture facing p. 28 is the site of the citadel of the ancient Beth-shean, now Bêsân. The spur of limestone rock on which the citadel stood is in shape like the crater of an extinct volcano. 10 ancient city of Beth-shean was not, however, confined to this hill: the ruins, which surpass any other in Western Palestine, extend over a surface of three The view from the keep of Beth-shean (which has been called a miniature Gibraltar) is one of the finest in the Jordan Valley. It is almost the furthest-seen, furthest-seeing fortress in the land. It lay in the line of the ancient 15 road between Damascus and Egypt, near the southeastern border of the Plain of Jezreel (see p. 75, l. 36), NE of Jenin (see Judges, p. 69, l. 39), about 3 miles W of the Jordan. According to Josephus it was the largest city of the Decapolis (Matt. 4, 25; Mark 5, 20; 7, 31), the Decapolitana regio of Pliny (Nat. Hist., 5, 16). The other nine cities of this Decapolitan League were all 20 situated east of the Jordan. In I Sam. 31, 10.12 we find the name in the form Beth-shan (cf. 2 Sam. 31, 10: Beth-shan and 1 Macc. 5,52; 12,40: Bethsan). In the Amarna Tablets the city is called Bît-sáni (see Johns Hopkins Contributions to Assyriology, vol. 4, p. 111, l. 31). The name means House of Safety (cf. above, p. 70, l. 8). In later times the city was called Scythopolis 25 (2 Macc. 12, 29; Judith 3, 10), perhaps from a colony of Scythians, that is, barbarians from the North (see above, p. 51, note '; Ezekiel, p. 173, l. 43, and cf. Herod. 1, 105; Pliny 5, 74).

- (10) It seems now established that the eastern territory of Manasseh (cf. 14 Num. 32) was not occupied by them at the time of the Israelite sojourn east of the Jordan, but by a later migration from the West. This section comes after the account of the western territory of Manasseh, and may have been the 35 introduction to the account of the migration of Machir and Jair eastward. Num. 32, 39-42 and Josh. 13, 13 would be the sequel to this account which, together with 15, 13-19.63; 16, 10; 17, 11-13; 19, 47, belongs to the same document as Jud. 1.

The repetition of v. 15 in vv. 17. 18, and other doublets have been explained 40 as resulting from a combination of two sources; but these and the general obscurity of the passage are probably due to the efforts of a redactor to adapt the narrative to the later tradition: that Eastern Manasseh, like Reuben and Gad, received their inheritance while Israel sojourned east of the Jordan.

As the narrative stands, this conference between Joshua and the Josephites 45 has no sequel.

- (11) RV Children; compare verse 17.
- (12) The Hill-country east and south of Carmel is full of forests, but this 15 was already included in the lot of Joseph.
- (13) The words in the land of the Perizzites and the Rephaim are omitted 50 in the Greek Bible; no district is elsewhere so designated. In Deut. 3, 13 the land of Rephaim = Bashan; so that whatever authority attaches to this phrase supports the view that the extra territory granted was east of the Jordan.
  - (14) Cf. note on 24,6 and Notes on Judges, p. 62.

(15) See above, p. 75, l. 37.

(16) Strengthened by the acquisition of Bashan, they would be able to 17 complete the conquest of their western territory.

(17) If this section be rightly understood, as an introduction to an account 18 5 of the settlement of Eastern Manasseh, the Hill-country must be that of Gilead.

V. I is P's heading to the division of the land by lot to all the nine and a half tribes, and was, as such, originally prefixed to 14, I (see above, p. 81, 1. 20), but transferred here by the redactor to admit of the insertion of vv. 2-10. To This section does not connect with either P or D, and is too systematic for J or E, but seems due to the editor who combined J and E (RJE; see above,

The picture facing 18, 1 p. 30 shows the southern slope of the hill of Shiloh with the ruins of a mosque and a large, gnarled, old terebinth,—the solitary tree of the district. The ancient Israelitish sanctuary may have stood on the large terrace behind the ruins of the deserted village of Sêlûn, N of the hill. Shiloh is about 8 hours from Jerusalem. 4 hours from Shechem, E of Joppa, and about 12 miles NE of Beth-el 20 (cf. Jud. 21, 19). The bold knoll, rocky and irregular, is strewn with a mass of shapeless ruins. Inhabitants there are none.

Another Old Babylonian plan of a house, found at Telloh and now in the Louvre, is nearly complete; it seems to belong to the period 20 of Sargon I. and his son, Narâm-Sin (about 2750 B. c.). We have also an Old Babylonian plan of a large estate, drawn up under the reign of King Ine-Sin, of Ur (about 2400 B. c.). It was found during the French excavations at Telloh and is now in the Imperial Museum of Constantinople. The size of this tablet is 12.7 x 10.8 centimeters (about  $5 \times 4\frac{2}{3}$  in.). - (13) Only five named; a fragment of a list of cities is added without any 15 connecting phrase to the description of the border. The Greek Bible omits 15b.
- (14) The lists of cities in vv. 17-23 are mechanically combined with one or 17 two indications of the border, which we are left to gather from the accounts of the neighboring tribes.
- (15) RV unto fezreel, but Jezreel (p. 75, l. 37) was in the middle of the terri- 18 tory. The modern name Zer'in is a corruption of Jezreel; cf. Bêtin for Beth-el.

  - (19) So with LXX; RV Ummah. (20) Only seventeen enumerated, 30
- (21) This account is confused and probably incomplete; but the impression 31 it conveys is that the border ran inlaud from Carmel to Shihor-libnath (Wâdy Zarqâ, S of Carmel), turned east to the border of Zebulun, and fol-20 lowed this for some distance; then a long narrow strip of territory stretched to the border of Zidon, and the W border came S, inland of Tyre, coming to an end at the sea near Achzib. Pliny (5, 17) calls the Wady Zarqa the Crocodile River. The climate of this marshy region is similar to the climate of the Egyptian Delta (cf. Shihor, 13, 3 and Is. 23, 3; Jer. 2, 18). About twenty years 25 ago German colonists of Haifâ killed here a female crocodile.
  - (22) Little that is definite can be gathered from the description in vv. 32-34 32 beyond the fact that Naphtali lay in the angle between Asher and Zebulun.
- (23) Cf. Jud. 4, 11; AV From Allon to Zaanannim; RV the oak in Zaa- 33 nannim, RVM oak (or terebinth) of Bezaanannim. It is better to read Bazaanim 30 in accordance with the Kěthíb (see above, p. vi, l. 4) in Jud. 4, 11. For terebinth see notes on Is. 1,29 and ibid. p. 212, No. 3. Cf. also note 22 on c. 24 and the plate facing p. 30.
  - (24) The Greek Bible omits Judah; but the passage does not make sense 34 either with or without this word.
    - (25) Only here, v. 29, and 10, 20 in Joshua.
- 35 (26) Fortified cities, Ziddim, Zer = Heb. MBCR, HCDM, CR; the text has probably been amplified by accidental repetition (cf. p. 87, l. 7).
  - (27) Not more than sixteen enumerated.
- (28) Verses 40-46 contain no description of the border, which might be 40 40 gathered from those of Judah and Ephraim, but simply a list of cities without statement as to number.
  - (29) Zorah, Eshtaol, and Ekron are given to Judah, 15, 33, 45. 41.43
- (30) The addition of the Received Text, and Rakkon (Heb. והרקון whrown), 46 not found in the Greek Bible, was due to an accidental repetition of Jarkon 45 (Heb. הירכון нукоwn); cf. above, l. 37.
- (31) A condensed version of the story given at length in Jud. 18; cf. 47 Jud. 1, 34. The Greek Bible combines this version with Jud. 1, 34. 35, and introduces curious misreadings, to the effect that the Sons of Judah conquered Lachish, and called it Lasenndak (in the Codex Alexandrinus of the Greek 50 Bible: Lesen Dan). The Greek Bible reads v. 48 immediately after v. 46.

The finest of the remarkable rock-tombs of Tibneh, figured in the Notes on Judges, p. 55, is said to be Joshua's tomb; but it seems to belong to a much later period, and it was apparently the burial to place of a large family.

Motes on Chapter 22.

- (1) Verses 1-8 are by various Deuteronomic writers; vv. 72 and 75.8 repre- 22, 1 sent a subsequent addition to vv. 1-6.
  - (2) RV Return . . . unto your tents . . . divide the spoil of your 8 enemies &c.
- (3) Verses 9-34 is a new section; v. 9 repeats vv. 6b and 8a. The problem of 9 45 this section is very difficult, being closely connected with the difficult passages in Num. 32; but a few points are clear. As in Num. 32, the earliest stratum is a JE narrative, which knew nothing of Half-Manasseh, but only of Reuben and Gad (vv. 25.32-34). As it bears no sufficient marks of having passed 22 through the hands of the Deuteronomic editor (RD), we gather that the story in its original form did not seem to him of an edifying character, and was therefore omitted from his edition of Joshua. The original story cannot there-5 fore have had for its moral the obligation to restrict Israel to a single altar; for to establish this restriction is a main object of Deuteronomy. This turn must have been given to the story by a priestly writer, possibly between the publication of Deuteronomy (621 B.C.) and the Exile (597 B.C.), while the exclusive rights of the Temple were not fully established.

But the story in its present form is much later, and must have been recast after the Exile (597-537 B.C.). Repeated and extensive manipulation makes it impossible to recover the original form of the narrative, or to indicate with any certainty the remaining fragments of JE. Cf. Jud. 20, 28, where Phinehas is also introduced (cf. Notes on Judges, p. 95, 1. 42), and where there is war, 15 21, 8-15, between the eastern and western tribes; and which was similarly excluded from the Deuteronomic edition of the Book of Judges, for obvious reasons. The absence of Joshua here suggests that the original story referred to the period after the Conquest (cf., however, 9, 17-21). The addition of the Deuteronomic formula Half-tribe of Manasseh in vv. 9-11.13.15.21, is due to 20 a late redactor, who was familiar with the D phrase. In vv. 30.31 an earlier corrector has added and the Manassites on the analogy of the preceding words. It was probably the presence of these casual additions in vv. 30.31 which prevented the other corrector from inserting the half-tribe throughout. He supposed the rest had been already corrected.

- (4) See note 1 on chapter 18.
- (5) According to this translation the altar is west of the Jordan in v. 10 11 and east in v. 11, so that v. 10 may be a fragment of the original account. RV, however, translates: An altar in the forefront of the land of Canaan, in the region about Jordan, on the side that pertaineth to the Children of Israel; but 30 the whole tenor of the rest of the narrative seems to imply that the altar was east of the Jordan. An altar built by the eastern tribes west of the Jordan would be a sufficient casus belli on purely political grounds.
  - (6) Cf. Deut. 12, 13. 14. (7) Num. 25, 3.4; Deut. 4, 3. 16. 17
  - (8) That is, JHVH is the God of gods, the Most High God (Gen. 14, 18). 22
  - (9) Something has fallen out, or been omitted accidentally in some stage 26 of the redaction. RV Let us now prepare to build us an altar.
    - (10) That is, Now have ye averted JHVH's punishment.
- (11) The name of the altar is wanting in the Received Text and in the 34 Greek Bible. ARV supply Ed = witness, with the Syriac Bible. But probably 40 here as in Gen. 31,47 f. we have an etymology of Gilead, omitted by some editor to avoid a clear contradiction of v. 10. Gal'ed = Heap of Witness.

The scale of the figures is in proportion to the importance of the persons represented (cf. the Elamite bas-relief figured on p. 164 of Ezekiel). Thus the great central figure is the King; note the lion 15 carved on the side of the chariot and the uræus-serpent in front of the headdress of the King (cf. the pictures of Amenophis III. and Amenophis IV., on p. 47). The uræus-serpent was supposed to emit flames destroying all who should dare to attack its royal bearer. The chariot is fitted with quivers and cases for javelins. The Egyptian chariots are on the right, and their Hittite and 20 Canaanite adversaries on the left. The Hittites (cf. above, p. 56, l. 8b) have long hair but clean-shaven faces, while their Canaanite allies are bearded. the large Egyptian shields and the smaller bucklers and targets (see Ezekiel, p. 175) of the Asiatic warriors. The Asiatic chariots carry a shield-bearer and a driver besides the warrior; on the Egyptian chariots we notice but two men, 25 viz. archer and driver; doubtless the King was similarly accompanied; but his charioteer is omitted, in order that he may be the more conspicuous. Cf. the Assyrian war-chariots figured on pp. 140 and 141 of Ezekicl. In the lower right-hand corner of our picture we see some European mercenaries of the Egyptians, viz. heavy-armed Shardin, that is, Sardinians. The hieroglyphics 30 above the heads of the horses of the royal Egyptian chariot mean: The good god, slayer of the nine barbarian nations, who kills millions in a moment, annihilating princes and nations, so that they tumble down in their blood, although there is no helper with him (the King). The two cartouches following contain the throne name and the personal name of Rameses II. 35 hieroglyphic legend above the backs of the royal horses means: The great team of His Majesty, the lustiest from the stable of Rameses II.

Our polychrome frontispiece is from a similar representation of the Battle of Kadesh, on the northern wall of the great temple of Abû Simbel, on the left bank of the Nile, north of the second cataract. The comments on these pictures 40 have been kindly furnished by Professor W. MAX MÜLLER, of Philadelphia.

but this late Jewish-Samaritan tradition is of no value. The tomb, which is whited and about five feet high, is in an enclosure, shaded by a noble terebinth tree (cf. note on 19, 33), adjoining a small mosque. been inserted by the redactor, but, even in this case, the reference to Eleazar was probably added by him. (c) The late priestly editors took a special interest in Eleazar and Phinehas, whom they introduce into Joshua 22 and Jud. 20, 28 (at Gibeah as here).

The point is important, as, if this verse and Deut. 10,6 are removed from E, that document no longer describes Aaron as of a the founder dynasty of highpriests.

(22) The alleged tomb of Eleazar (also the traditional tomb of Phinehas) is in the village of 'Awartâ, S of Mount Gerizim (Judges, p. 18), near the entrance to the Plain of Shechem;
